GLAD TO HEAR IT

No matter who helps, all can take hold and try to do something to keep our workmen employed. That's our aim. Get in line and help is the best way to serve. Portsmouth has something to do in these days of reconstruction and we are more interested in trying to do for those in need than anything else. Just now, push not pull may count for something.

SEC. DANIELS SHOWS STRENGTH OF OTHER NAVIES

England's Strength Double That of United States.

(By Associated Press)

Washington, Jan. 12.—Secretary Daniels today laid before the House Naval force committee what he described as approximately complete data on the relative sea power of the three principal naval powers requested by the committee in connection with its consideration of the question of international disarmament. Cables submitted by the Secretary show that while the present effective fighting strength of the British navy includes 558 ships of 1,588,440 tons as compared with 330 ships of 779,193 tons for the American navy, completion of the authorized building program by this country in 1925 will give it a tonnage superior in the ratio of 1.35 to 1 with approximately an equal number of ships.

Washington, Jan. 12.—While the present strength of the American navy was shown to be more than double that of Japan, should the latter country carry to its projected program for 1927 in addition of construction already authorized and this country terminate construction with its present program its naval superiority over Japan if that event was done, would be reduced to a ratio of 1.4 to 1.

NAVY BALOON TRIO NEARING TORONTO

(By Associated Press)

Mattice, Ont., Jan. 12.—Lieutenants Farrell, Kloor and Hinton were much refreshed this morning after their first night's sleep of real rest since setting out from the frozen Hudson Bay region where they landed on December 14th after a hazardous balloon flight from Rockway Naval Station. Preparations were under way today for their departure late this afternoon for Toronto. The dispute that arose between Lieutenants Farrell and Hinton shortly after their arrival here yesterday apparently had been forgotten. The quarrel culminated in a blow from Farrel that sent his fellow aeronaut sprawling over a table in the home of H. P. Williamson. The aeronauts rose early and at breakfast in their private car all regretted the incident that marred their historical adventure. The quarrel arose over a letter written by Hinton to his wife from Moose Factory. In the letter which a New York newspaper published Hinton said that Farrell exhausted from the rigorous wandering pleaded with his two companions to kill Him and eat his body to enable them to get back to civilization. Farrell charged his companion with "double crossing" him, saying all had agreed that their letters should not be published. Hinton's refusal to refund was the immediate cause for Farrell's blow. Newspaper correspondents interfered and separated them.

GENERAL BLISS SAYS NATIONS WOULD W LCOME CONFFRENCE

(By Associated Press)

Washington, Jan. 12.—Should the United States call upon the nations of the world for "a full, free and full discussion of reduction of armaments, a favorable response would be prompt and inevitable, the House naval committee was today today by General Tasker Bliss, former American representative on the Supreme War Council at Paris. The nation that would come to such a conference and refuse to agree to any provisions looking to disarmament, or at least a reduction of its military establishment," said General Bliss, "could be written down as the next Germany and the United States could make its plans accordingly." General Bliss said his association with the high military representatives of the other powers at Paris had confirmed its belief that all of the great nations of the world were ready to talk seriously of disarmament.

TEXTILE WORKERS AT LAWRENCE REFUSE "CUT"

War Is On States Secretary of the A. T. W.

(By Associated Press)

Lawrence, Mass., Jan. 12.—The wage reduction ordered by textile manufacturers here was declared to be a declaration of war in a statement today by Joseph Salerno, secretary of the local branch of the Amalgamated Textile workers of America. Regarding the announcement by President Wood of the American Woolen Company "and other textile barons" that wages would be cut 22 1-2 per cent, Secretary Salerno said "we reply that we recognize the re-declaration of war; that the fight is on; and that the pitched battles of 1912 and 1919 will be resumed at our earliest convenience, and that we will fight on until we are recognized as human beings whose right to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness cannot be denied us." The Amalgamated Textile Workers' local includes only a small proportion of the 35,000 mill workers in this city. Its ranks split recently by the secession of some of its members from a branch here of the "one big union" idea under the leadership of Ben Legere, former secretary of the A. T. W. Secretary Salerno's statement said the wage cut was "another fat man outrage attempting to make permanent the present conditions of poverty which have been forced upon thousands of workers' families of the last six months." The cost of living has not decreased in proportion to the 22 1-2 per cent wage cut, it was stated. Referring to the salary and income of President Wood, which it is said he was allowed to make "because cloth is not clothing according to our profiteering laws" the statement added that while accepting the large profits himself Mr. Wood was taking $5.00 a week from his workers' wives and children." "The system of society which requires such action and allows it must be wiped off the face of the earth was the conclusion.

His Case Now in Hands of President For Decision

(By Associated Press)

Washington, Jan. 12.—Formal claims of the right of a political refugee was made today by Donal O'Callaghan, Lord Mayor of Cork, who arrived in this country as a stowaway without a passport and whose case is before President Wilson for final decision as the result of differences between the State and Labor departments. The claim was presented to Secretary Wilson of the Labor Department by Judge Lawlers, attorney for O'Callaghan. Lord Mayor himself arrived in Washington today from New York and expected to testify before the Commission of the Committee of 100 investigating conditions in Ireland. Acting Secretary Davis of the State Department has ruled that the Lord Mayor cannot be considered a political refugee when Eamon DeValera was recruiting to Ireland at the same time that O'Callaghan was laying there.

JAIL HALTS SABLED FORGER'S WEDDING

Sabra B. Dyer Given 6 Months Term in Manchester.

Manchester, Jan. 12.—Despite the appeals of her counsel and the recommendations of the county solicitor for clemency, Sabra B. Dyer, 25, of Hollis, Me., so-called "beauty in sables," was sentenced to six months in Hillsborough county jail for forgery, by Justice Oliver W. Branch of superior court, here yesterday.

The jail sentence holds up for the present the intended marriage of Miss Dyer to John F. Wells of Boston, who was arrested by the local police the same day the girl attempted to cash a bogus check at the Amoskeag National Bank. The couple first said they were married but later denied it.

The girl had passed checks in several New England cities, and it is understood that charges in those places were dropped after her family made restitution. A few days ago Wells and Miss Dyer filed marriage intentions and were leaving to be married last night in Boston. Wells came here to take the girl to Boston, but the jail sentence has put an end to their marriage plans for a time.

The girl was taken from the county jail to Sheriff O'Dowd's office in the afternoon and Wells accompanied by Atty. E. W. Cochrane of Boston, who attended the girl, went back to Boston on an afternoon train.

The girl went to the county jail, where she has been installed as a helper in the jail kitchen.

The passing of the Galt House at Louisville, Ky., reminds us that when Charles Dickens came to this country from England he was waited upon in his apartments at the Galt House, by this somewhat pompous host:

Said the great English author, answering the knock at the door: "Who are you, sir?"

"I am the landlord of this hotel, and I have called to say—"

"Well, sir," said Mr. Dickens. "When I want you I will ring for you."

"You can go to hell," said the landlord.

Mr. Dickens did not go to this torrid region just then, but he did immediately depart for the Hotel, located a few blocks further down on the same street as the Galt House.

PERSIAN PILGRIM'S PEN PICTURES

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 23, 1920.

The Persian Pilgrims in Topeka, Kansas.

During the last few days the Persian Pilgrims have been traveling through the States of Kansas and Missouri, witnessing with their own eyes the progress that those two states have made in education and industry, so manifest all over this country. They arrived in Topeka on December 15th and were welcomed at the station by Mrs. Matt Weightman, Jr. Mrs. Weightman is a Bahai and very much interested in all those problems that advance the cause of humanity. Miss Bertha C. Hyde, with whom the Persian Pilgrims were corresponding during the last few weeks, had arranged with the help of Mrs. Weightman, a series of meetings, so that the Persian Professor, Jenabi Fazel Mazandarani may speak on the Bahai movement. The Pilgrims were the guests of Mrs. Weightman. Immediately after their arrival at the station, they were taken to her home at 1203 Fillmore street, where a very airy and delightful room was assigned to them. In the evening she had invited a large number of her special friends, including somes lecturers, to come and listen to the speech of the Persian Scholar. The audience was composed of some of the most cultured inhabitants of Topeka. The talk of Jenabi Fazel was on the Universal Brotherhood of religions and on the removal of all prejudices between the various sects and denominations, so that the ideals of humanity may gain victory over the low ambitions and selfish thoughts. The world will not obtain peace until a time when the very root of selfishness and egotism is burned away by the fire of the love of God. The root of war at the present time is in the hearts of the people and as long as it is there, we may have other wars. The statesmen and the leaders of mankind must teach the ideals of good fellowship and love to the children from the time that they are born. The educationalists and the teachers must inculcate these lessons in the very marrow of the children. This is the age in which the thought of men must become illumined with the rays of the sun of reality, their consciences refreshed by the breezes of the breezes of truth, their souls revitalized by the fragrance of the flowers of the garden of unity, their spirits strengthened by the power of the army of the Lord of Hosts. A new highway must be paved, new ideal obtained, new vision gained, new experiences realized, and new faculties developed. After the speech, many of those who were present asked questions and the Persian lecturer gave satisfactory answers to each and all, showing them that the Bahai movement is for the sake of love and amity and not controversy and argument, as religious matters, whenever the people start to argue and dispute, they are wasting their energy, because religion is for the sake of love and not theological controversies.

Talk Before the Metaphysical Library

On Sunday, December 19th, at 11.00 a. m., Jenabi Fazel was taken by Mr. and Mrs. Weightman to the Metaphysical Library, where a host of friends welcomed him. The President of the Club introduced the Oriental Sage and for one hour or more he spoke on the subject of self-mastery. He said in part: "In this age the people of the world have lost that master key which unlocked the door of the heart and minds and consequently they are self-centered, self-satisfied, and self-absorbed. Christ delivered this master key into the hands of his disciples and with it they went out into the world to conquer the cities of the hearts. Later on, human ambitions and desires crept in and the simple and pure teachings of Christ were complicated with creeds and dogmas, to such an extent that the reality of the principles of the founder was forgotten. Today Baha-o-Llah has come out of the mysterious East to recover the lost vision and to place again in the hands of the people those master keys, the use of which have been forgotten. He placed in the heart of man universal ideals and in the minds, international thoughts, so that both of them may co-ordinate through the organs and limbs of the body to those constructive channels that would give the greatest benefit to all mankind, usher in the era of millennium, and advance the cause of brotherhood.

Lecture in the Orpheum Theatre

At three o'clock another address was delivered in the largest theatre of Topeka on the subject of "The Teachings of All Religions are Identical." The theatre was comfortably filled, with those who have read the announcement of the lecture in the newspapers, and they had all come to hear this Persian teacher who has come out of the East with the new but the old message of peace and love amongst all the nations of the earth. Mr. Albert Vail of Chicago introduced the speaker by giving a synopsis of the principles of the Bahai movement, ending his talk with the following story related by Abdul Baha: "One upon a time a Mohammedan, a Christian and a Jew were sailing on the sea in a small boat some three or four days when a storm arose and the little boat was in danger of being capsized. The Mohammedan, filled with terror of losing his life, turned his eyes to heaven, crying, 'Oh Allah! Oh Allah! were it not for the sake of this Moslem of a Christian, this storm would not have arisen. Save me, Save me, but drown him to the bottom of the sea.' The Christian likewise in a state of mental agony cried: 'Oh Lord, Oh Lord, Oh Christ, drown this hypocrite of a Mohammedan to the very depths of the waters, for were it not for his bad influence and evil company, Thou would'st have saved me by this time.' The Jew sat silent. At last those two asked him, 'Art thou not afraid, why dost thou not pray?' He calmly rejoined: 'Oh yes, I was praying to my Jehovah that he may answer the prayers of both of you.' Such is the state of religious prejudices in the orient which is being removed through the power of the teaching of Baha-o-llah."

Lecture on the Religion and Reality of Jesus Christ

In the evening a most comprehensive talk was given in the same Orpheum Theatre on "The Religion and Reality of Jesus Christ," by Jenabi Fazel. He said in part, "The reality and religion of Jesus Christ is universal love; it is a spiritual fellowship, holiness of life, divine attributes, intercommunication between the nations and religions of the world, detachment from material things, and the attachment of the heart to spiritual principles. Walking in the path of the Saints and seers, and characterizing one self with celestial qualifications. The religion and reality of Jesus Christ is advancement toward God, being kindled with the fire of the love of God, to be baptized with the water of the Holy Spirit, to love all humanity, to make no distinction between race, color and creed, and to imitate Christ in his life. Salvation must be through character and not verbal belief. If a person is baptized in the waters of the Pacific Ocean but his inner life is not pure, he will no be saved. If we do not live in accordance with the teachings and commandments of Christ, we are not Christians. Hence the Bahai movement has come to proclaimize the noble teachings of Christianity and to make the people conscious of the fact that they must live in accordance with the Sermon on the Mount.

Lecture in the Elks' Club

On Monday, December 20th, at 4.00 p. m. a large and enthusiastic audience greeted the Persian speaker at the Elks' Club, who were anxious to hear a talk on the Womans' Movement in Persia. He pointed out in a graphic manner how during seventy years under the influence of the teachings of Baha-o-llah, Eastern women have begun to take ethical, intellectual and social duties: how they have formed various clubs: how they have founded many schools, how they have established many newspapers and magazines in which they discuss with an utmost intelligence and sagacity those problems that pertain to their own development and spiritual uplift. There is a new woman in Persia who is totally different from the old subjective kind. Those who have studied the subject are filled with an enthusiasm that knows no bounds. The women of Turkey and India, Egypt and Arabia, are likewise stirred with a new spirit. The example of their sisters in the United States in winning political equality has fired their breasts and now more than ever they are resolved to go on and obtain their enfranchisement. They are terribly in earnest and one hears that they are advancing day by day and adding to their new victories year by year. There is no doubt that this principle of universal equality between men and women laid down by Baha-o-llah seventy years ago will become part of the law of all the nations of the earth and a time will soon come when men and women will work side by side for the perfection of humanity and the progress of those ideals which form the very backbone of human society.

Lecture in the Library of Washburn College.

At 5.00 p. m. Jenabi Fazel spoke to a very intelligence audience on Modern Education in Persia, as advocated by Baha-o-Llah. Although it was raining, yet many people faced the inclemency of the weather, coming out to hear this lecture. From what one and afterward, they were not disappointed. Several people took down notes and were pleased with the content of the lecture on account of its real spirit and universal application.

Mr. and Mrs. Wightman were perfect host and hostess and their hospitality was touched with oriental beauty and sweetness. It is indeed wonderful that wherever these Persian Pilgrims go, they feel perfectly at home, everyone is most kind to them, and pour upon their love and affection. Though we spent two days in Topeka, its memory will last for years, in effect forever. The Bahai cause has few followers in this city. In the past a number of Bahai lecturers have stopped here and addressed audiences. That there are quite a large number who are sympathetic to the movement, did its warmth, simplicity and spontaneity.

Topeka From a Historical Standpoint

The State of Kansas has 1,767,257 inhabitants, and Topeka has a population of 69859. Its area including the suburbs is sixteen square miles. It has thirteen banks, ninety-seven churches, nine colleges and vocational schools, twenty-six common schools, six high and junior schools, two hospitals, several industrial institutions, seven hospitals, and eight libraries. Topeka is well known for two things, being the capital of the State and having the noble Capitol Building which is the pride of the people. The Legislature of Kansas has 120 representatives and 40 senators. It meets once every two years, for fifty days. The representatives receive a salary of $3.00 a day for fifty days in which the Legislature is open, so it seems they have to have a private income or their own businesses. Governor Allen lives in this city and his house was pointed out to the Persian Pilgrims as they drove by. Governor Allen, with his Industrial Court to settle strikes between capital and labor has won great national popularity. The State of Kansas has been on the temperance list for the last thirty years, and the women voted for local issues for many years past. As Mr. Weightman, our host, is a member of the Legislature, he told me that one of the representatives was going to introduce a Bill this year against tobacco smoking. He jocularly remarked, "I suppose the next bill will be against coffee."

The city of Topeka has wide avenues, shaded by tall noble trees. It is typically a city of homes. Here, as elsewhere a number of factories are shutting down and unemployment is one of the problems that the city has to grapple with this winter. Kansas being a farming state, it has no large cities, but its people are progressive and advanced along many lines of modern life. The sweet mother of Mrs. Weightman, an old lady, told us of many years ago when she came with her husband to Topeka in an ox cart and in all the surrounding country there was hardly any home to be seen. She related to us many stories of frontier days when there was no railroad, no gas, no electricity, but today looking back to her early life, she enjoys more the blessing with which we are surrounded than anybody else.

The Press of Topeka

The Topeka Daily State Journal of December 20th, says in part: "To further his religious philosophy, which looks toward the unity of economic, social, political and spiritual forces of the world, Jenabi Fazel is touring the United States and Canada. Persecution by the Persian clergy was the lot of Jenabi Fazel when he adopted the faith known as the Bahai movement. He said: 'Instead of accepting Christ's teachings as he gave it, who have had two thousand years in futile discussions of creeds and dogmas. If we continue for another two thousand years, we will be living in a dream land of utopia.' The disciples had little or no bearing on the teachings of Christianity. Each statement made by Professor is interpreted by Mirza Sohrab, who travels with him and who is proficient in both the English and Persian languages. Again he said: 'The Orient is the foundation head of Christianity. Missionaries from America to that country are doing a great work in education, hospital and dispensaries, and we appreciate this very much. But they come divided amongst themselves, with narrowness and creeds and try to divide religions of the East, while in reality they are all based on the same principle and teach the same God.'"

The Daily Capital says: "A real Persian, who talks through his interpreter, and who is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Weightman, is in Topeka. Professor Fazel, who is a Bahai, has two purposes in his tour, that of lecturing on the doctrines of the Bahai movement, which proclaiming universal peace, universal religion and universal language, and the study of the American educational system. He says: 'The system of education in America is the best, and on this account it is the strongest cause of the lack of prejudices and superstitions.'"

The Persians in Kansas City, Mo.

Having accomplished the work in Topeka, the Persian Pilgrims, accompanied by Mr. Vail of Chicago, came to Kansas City on the invitation of Rev. L. M. Birkhead, whom they met in Topeka at the Spiritualist meeting where they spoke to an interested audience.

Kansas City is one of the largest cities between Chicago and the Pacific Coast. The last census gave to Kansas City 324,110 population. This shows an increase over 1910 of 76,029, and advances Kansas City from twentieth place to nineteenth. Greater Kansas City, including Independence, Rosedale and others which adjoin the city, a total population of nearly half a million. Kansas City has 767 miles of streets and has 85 miles of continuous boulevards, with 3,000 acres of parks, interurban lines connect the Missouri side of the city with the central core. 305 churches and 60,000 children in 5 high schools and 125 grade schools. Swope Park, one of the largest in the United States, was donated to Kansas City in 1896 by Col. Thomas Swope, and it contains 1,381 acres. More than a million dollars has been spent on the development and improvement of this park. The City Boulevard in North Terrace Park contains 2 miles of most beautiful drive in the world. It is called Cliff Drive because of a curious rock formation of rock towers above the roadway.

The Persian Pilgrims took their meals in Kiopers' Hotel and were warmly entertained by Mr. Slater, a Bahai lady from Chicago, who had come to arrange meetings in this city. On December 22nd, both in the afternoon and the evening, Jenabi Fazel spoke on the Oriental Origin and Features in the Christian Church. The afternoon audience was composed of the Young Matrons' Club women. He told them that seventy years ago the women of Persia were held in a bondage of ancient customs and traditions. They were thought little of so far as the affairs of national life was concerned. Outside their homes they were nonentities, but a new era was to present itself for the benefit of the womankind of Persia. It came in the form of principles that were taught by the Prophet of Abul Baha. He it was who taught that women in Persia should be put on a basis of equality with the men; should receive the same advantages of education and have a voice in making the laws that govern them. The Bahai women of Persia are now enjoying more privileges than in former times and on the whole all the women of the East are rising out of their old state of slavery. Brotherhood was next taken up by the Persian Pilgrims and although we were at the approach of Christmas and all the people were busy with gift buying and gift giving, he opened his lecture by saying that Christmas was a time of love and peace and gave the Persian teacher an opportunity to speak before the members.

Professor Fazel was pleased with the reception he received by the people of Kansas City. Several souls came to the front to speak with him about the principles of the Bahai movement. His joy knew no bounds when he pondered to the call of unity manifested. Whether in Omaha, Lincoln, Topeka or Kansas City, the inhabitants were uniformly kind and received sympathetically to the message which has come out of the East but it belongs to the whole world. The Bahai message is an urgent plea for unity, economic, international and religious. There must come over the world, not only a material unity but a unity of the spirit, the result of which is the unity of nations, of capital and labor and of religion. The world cannot be saved through force and violence, through governmental or political combination, but it must be brought about with the power of love, of sympathy, which will be the inner transformation. The unity of mankind is an outstanding one of the foremost issues of the day, and it must be realized first. Baha-o-Llah was redeemed out of this third part of man's nature. Through primary, secondary and college education. It is said by John H. Lewis, "Education becomes a factor of wide power only when it popularized its exclusive possession by theories, so it seems to be that the effectiveness of the service of the public library depends upon its establishing close relations with the public. These relations must come from an identity of interest on both parts. This identity of interest and sympathetic mind is expressed by active participation in the affairs of the community." This shows to us clearly that the function of education is not only in the school but in the public libraries. In the community and in the desire of men and women themselves to equip their minds with the best ideas of the age. Education must develop self-discipline, the appreciation of the great values of things, self-possession, and a love for principles. Education must teach one that a master key to popular the right mood to be for the time being as much good as is possible. Even if all the people are against it, President Wilson expressed a great truth when he said, "I would rather be defeated in a cause that some day will be successful than succeed in a cause that will be defeated." Thomas Carlisle, the English philosopher and historian, has a similar spiritual saying: "No teacher, no book, no spiritual inheritance is worth a straw which does not help us to live in the world as it is, to see the meaning of today, to understand the significance of the present moment." Truth, though be very much up for debate in the world, is the only thing that can make us free from the nightmare of ignorance, selfishness, poverty and pauperism. In the new world which is being transformed into a paradise of such the eyes will become opened by the light of truth, the ears filled with the melodies of perfection, the minds cleansed from all thoughts and dreams, the tongues expressing the realities of the Kingdom, the feet walking in the path of righteousness, and the hands raising the fallen and the helpless.

A Plan That Appears Practical.

Notwithstanding a feeling on the part of many that the best service the government can render to business is to take its hand off from it to the greatest practicable extent, there will nevertheless be interest in the proposition to have complete publicity of official coal cost data, to be collected through the Federal Trade Commission as a means of cutting down the cost of coal to consumers. This idea originates with the Senate Reconstruction Committee, and it is expected that the matter will come up in the Senate this week. Complete agreement as to the form of the measure has not yet been reached, but if it is adopted it is proposed to make the collection of statistics mandatory on the Commission, which will be empowered to demand accounts from the coal operators, test their accuracy and compile the results by districts for the study of consumers.

This is quite in line with what was said by this paper in commenting recently on the coal situation, which was that it would seem to be practicable for the government to ascertain the exact cost of mining and transporting coal, and thus to be in a position to know whether or not unreasonable profits were being exacted by operators or dealers, or both.

The great outstanding fact is that for some years past consumers of coal have been compelled to pay exorbitant prices. Each different branch of the trade has placed the responsibility upon the others. There have been investigations and investigations, but the dance has gone merrily on. Not only have exorbitant prices been exacted, but slate and stone have been dumped upon a suffering public by the wholesale. The fuel administrator of Massachusetts said only a few days ago that in this way millions of dollars have been taken out of the people of that state alone, and the conditions were no worse there than in other parts of New England and the country. There has been a revel of high-handed robbery, and everybody knows it. It is a pleasure to say that there has of late been a big improvement in the quality of coal, though it still contains enough "slag" for all practical purposes. There is also a little mellowing in prices in some sections and the outlook is, on the whole, better than it has been before since the coal men took the public by the throat shortly after the beginning of the war.

It is possible that if the government were to remove its hand entirely the trouble would right itself, but if there is to be official interference the plan of having the exact cost of producing and distributing coal ascertained and made public seems more feasible than any other that has been advanced.

The public will await with interest the action of the authorities in this matter. Coal is one of the natural resources of the country and if it is possible to prevent the robbery of the people through monopoly and combination it ought to be done. The public has paid dearly for its fuel since the orgy began and if relief is possible it is time that it should be forthcoming.

The fact that Will H. Hays, chairman of the Republican National Committee, has made it known that he will accept a place in the Cabinet if it is offered is accepted by many as a pretty clear indication that it will be offered. And if he does as good work in the President's official family as he did in the campaign he will do well enough.

It is interesting to note that the New Hampshire College students who are to study cooking in order to be in a position to take care of themselves after entering the profession of forestry desire to learn first how to make biscuits, doughnuts and pie. They evidently intend to live well, according to the ideas of the average man.

Governor Harkness of Vermont wants that state well supplied with landing fields in order that it may share with other states the advantages of aerial transportation, which he believes is to assume importance in the not distant future. And he evidently feels that in this, as in other things, there is nothing like "preparedness."

American Quakers are doing relief work among the children in Germany, and no one will think any the less of them for it. The German children are not responsible for the suffering to which the world has been subjected by their elders.

And still another field has been opened for investigation. The plan now is to see how far responsible enforcement agents and officers are for the apparent failures in enforcing the prohibitory law.

One of the greatest tea companies in the country has decided to confine its advertising strictly to the newspapers hereafter. It has tested all kinds and adopted the best.

Prohibition Commissioner Kramer is evidently learning from experience. He has already concluded that the United States will never be "literally dry."

Gov. Cox's Pardon of Holden

(From the Cleveland Plain Dealer)

Does the Governor of Ohio believe that eleven years in prison is an adequate penalty for the murder of two defenceless men? Does anyone believe it adequate?

The action of James M. Cox in pardoning Harry H. Holden of Cuyahoga County astonishes the community. Holden is characterized as one of the worst criminals in the county's history. He was twice convicted for first degree murder, but a merciful jury saved him from the electric chair. Instead of going to his death, the double murderer was sentenced to life imprisonment "without hope of pardon."

Without hope of pardon? Were it not for the hope of pardon any murderer would prefer the death penalty to life imprisonment.

Either the pardon of Holden was a serious mistake on the Governor's part or there are vital considerations involved of which the public is ignorant. If the latter be the fact Mr. Cox owes it to the State, and particularly to Cuyahoga County, to explain the circumstances which led to his turning loose Cleveland's "worst criminal" loose on society. The Plain Dealer will be glad to give space to any such statement the Governor may care to make.

Some Wise Words of MacCaulay

(From the Hartford Courant)

Some years ago an earnest effort was undertaken by certain good people to get God into the Constitution of the United States. They seemed to feel that, if their movement succeeded, every American citizen would go to Heaven. Their effort failed, and it seems safe to assume that their fine ambition for their fellow citizens failed.

Lately the same spirit has started a movement for compelling everybody to be good along certain standards which suit the agitators. The newspapers are talking much of it, but it looks to calm observers as if this was a sensational episode, not to be seriously considered. In this connection it is of interest to note a few words of MacCaulay, dropped in an aside aside in one of his charming essays. He says:

"When a government, not content with repairing decency, requires sanctity, it oversteps the bounds which mark its proper functions. And it may be laid down as a universal rule that a government which attempts more than it ought will perform less."

This is sound doctrine. There is a limit to the propriety of the government to interfere with the private rights of its citizens and this new scheme for requiring sanctity is a case in point.

Supporting Farm Bureaus

(From The New England Homestead)

It speaks well for the future of New England agriculture when farmers are responding so promptly to the $5 and $10 campaigns for yearly membership in their farm bureaus. All readers have already been advised a $10 membership was launched in Addison County, Vt., a few weeks ago with the result that 80 to 90 per cent of the farmers in different towns joined. More come in at this figure than did at the old $2 rate. Windsor and Chittenden counties in the same State are now engaged in a similar membership drive with similar results in Massachusetts several counties are enrolling members at $5 a year and the reports are that farmers appear to be glad to see the farm bureau abandon its shoestring policy and put organization upon a sound financial basis. When farmers will dig down into their pockets for 500 to 1000 per cent increase in dues to finance their own organization, it shows they can no longer be termed conservative hard heads who pinch dollars until the eagle screams. It's a worthy work and deserves to succeed.

Where Rooms are Warm

(From the Philadelphia Public Ledger)

Rear Admiral Newton A. McCully, who has had a career of derring-do on the quarterdeck and elsewhere, has done nothing in his life that better becomes a gallant seadog than his great act of mercy toward seven small Russian fugitives. The admiral, as our representative in the Crimea, held on to the last before the fall of Wrangel, and he may or may not be of an appealing nature, as of impor-

ing destitutions and distracted terror. At the end he took these little ones who pleaded that they might come with him to the great good place "where the rooms are warm."

For six years hunger and homelessness have been the portion of these waifs redeemed. They were robbed of their birthright to play. The little ones in these long lean years have hardly spoken, we are told, of anything but food. The pathos is that these seven children who have become wards of the good-hearted admiral are merely a few from a host no man can number. These fortunate ones are taken; but so many must be left behind, to the vicissitudes of the crowded ships in the Bosphorus, to the life of mere scavengers ashore. If because of [illegible] social impediments we cannot bring them here, at least we can help them there.

A Hold-Up Game

(From the Manchester Union)

What the senators who rode triumphantly over the President's veto of the resolution reviving the War Finance Corporation were thinking about is not hard to guess. They were thinking that it would be better for them to vote the way the farmers in the big producing areas want them to vote. For the most part, it must be assumed, they are not such fools as to believe that any real good can come to anybody out of this device for the putting of an additional strain upon already overstrained credit, even to the Western and Southern farmers, but it is following a line of least resistance to permit these farmers to think that something is being done for them, and so that line is followed.

What is being put over is a hold-up game. While we of the manufacturing East and North are reducing wages—and let it be said that our workers are showing a fine spirit in the wage reductions are announced one after another—and are cutting prices at the source, standing losses the while that in some instances cut pretty nearly to the bone, the producers of the food we eat, and the cotton we work into goods, are preparing to dip into the Treasury, which is largely filled from this same manufacturing North, for millions that will, they hope, keep this same food and cotton at top prices. No sound economic theory lies back of the performance, and we hope our Southern and Western friends are sensible enough to know that. It would be rather discouraging to have to think that over great areas of our country the bulk of the producers have learned nothing about economics since the easy-money fevers of the early days of the republic were epidemic. So long as the votes can be had in the Congress, however, a possibly workable hold-up theory lies back of it, and we cannot but hope that the job is being done on this theory. That could be understood, even if not admired.

Only, we had hoped that the Congress would have the gumption and the "sand" to stand up in its shoes and prevent the hold-up.

B. & M. IS UNABLE TO PAY STATION AGENT'S SALARY

At One Station Agent's Pay Is $1,320 and Receipts Only $900.

At a recent hearing before the Public Service Commission in Concord remonstrants appeared against the proposal of the Boston and Maine to close the stations of Wakefield and Matthews on the Conway branch of the Portland Division. A large number of Wakefield residents were present and claimed that the best interests of the town and section demanded the retention of the stations.

The railroad representatives insisted that the business did not warrant the payment of the wages of the employes and in one instance pointed out that the pay roll called for $1320 per annum, while the total receipts of the station were under $900. The salary of the agent at that place had been increased from $30 per month to $40 in less than five years.

The matter was taken under advisement.

Since then the station at Matthews has been closed but Wakefield remains open.

LETTERS OF GRATITUDE

Eloquent language and illustrations in advertising may appeal to many, but after all it is the homely, sincere letters from women, overflowing with heartfelt gratitude for health restored by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, that convince other suffering women that there is a medicine that will help them also. Many such letters are being published in this paper from day to day, and it is to any woman's advantage who suffers from female ailments in any form to give this old fashioned root and herb remedy a trial.

NOTHING TO WORRY ABOUT IN TRISTAN

Buenos Aires.—The island of Tristan da Cunha is described as "an unpolluted haven of rest for the weary and a Mecca for those who long for relief from worries of life," by the chaplain of the British cruiser Dartmouth which has just returned from a visit to that isolated spot.

"No need to worry over money there or there is none," said the chaplain. "There are no taxes, no doctors, no lawyers, no clergymen, no policemen, not even a head man. Newspapers and mail arrive with luck about once every two years.

"There is not even any medicine for the last supply of remedies was thrown into the sea by the inhabitants, who are remarkably healthy. Epidemics are unknown.

"Tristan is a British possession in the South Atlantic between South Africa and South America. Its snow-capped peak towers nearly 8000 feet above sea level. It is only 21 miles in circumference. The nearest inhabited place is St. Helena, 1,200 miles away.

"Sufficient potatoes are grown in plots to meet the needs of the inhabitants. Cattle and sheep were introduced years ago and many cattle now run wild. Clothes are only to be obtained by bartering from ships that sail. For protection to the feet the people make moccasins of bullock hide. Wonderful socks are made by the women from wool carded by themselves.

"From June to October of this year the people had been without bread, tea, coffee and sugar, but they all looked pretty well nourished."

"The reason there is no bread is that 50 or 60 years ago a shipwreck near the island allowed rats to get ashore so that since that time no wheat has been raised. But the men say that they are going to try again when the next mail in a year or two brings them some seed wheat. In the meantime, they are in no hurry; if there isn't any bread they can be contented on potatoes. And to supplement their potatoes, fish are abundant, and cattle, and birds with their eggs, and seals. They want for many things, says the chaplain, nevertheless "there appears to be little discontent and few ever wish to leave the island."

A Plan That Appears Practical.

Notwithstanding a feeling on the part of many that the best service the government can render to business is to take its hand off from it to the greatest practicable extent, there will nevertheless be interest in the proposition to have complete publicity of official coal cost data, to be collected through the Federal Trade Commission as a means of cutting down the cost of coal to consumers. This idea originates with the Senate Reconstruction Committee, and it is expected that the matter will come up in the Senate this week. Complete agreement as to the form of the measure has not yet been reached, but if it is adopted it is proposed to make the collection of statistics mandatory on the Commission, which will be empowered to demand accounts from the coal operators, lest their accuracy and compile the results by districts for the study of consumers.

This is quite in line with what was said by this paper in commenting recently on the coal situation, which was that it would seem to be practicable for the government to ascertain the exact cost of mining and transporting coal, and thus to be in a position to know whether or not unreasonable profits were being exacted by operators or dealers, or both.

The great outstanding fact is that for some years past consumers of coal have been compelled to pay exorbitant prices. Each different branch of the trade has placed the responsibility upon the others. There have been investigations and investigations, but the dance has gone merrily on. Not only have exorbitant prices been exacted, but slate and stone have been dumped upon a suffering public by the wholesale. The fuel administrator of Massachusetts said only a few days ago that in this way millions of dollars have been taken out of the people of that state alone, and the conditions were no worse there than in other parts of New England and the country. There has been a revel of high-handed robbery, and everybody knows it. It is a pleasure to say that there has of late been a big improvement in the quality of coal, though it still contains enough "slag" for all practical purposes. There is also a little mellowing in prices in some sections and the outlook is, on the whole, better than it has been before since the coal men took the public by the throat shortly after the beginning of the war.

It is possible that if the government were to remove its hand entirely the trouble would right itself, but if there is to be official interference the plan of having the exact cost of producing and distributing coal ascertained and made public seems more feasible than any other that has been advanced.

The public will await with interest the action of the authorities in this matter. Coal is one of the natural resources of the country and if it is possible to prevent the robbery of the people through monopoly and combination it ought to be done. The public has paid dearly for its fuel since the orgy began and if relief is possible it is time that it should be forthcoming.

The fact that Will H. Hays, chairman of the Republican National Committee, has made it known that he will accept a place in the Cabinet if it is offered is accepted by many as a pretty clear indication that it will be offered. And if he does as good work in the President's official family as he did in the campaign he will do well enough.

It is interesting to note that the New Hampshire College students who are to study cooking in order to be in a position to take care of themselves after entering the profession of forestry desire to learn first how to make biscuits, doughnuts and pie. They evidently intend to live well, according to the ideas of the average man.

Governor Harkness of Vermont wants that state well supplied with landing fields in order that it may share with other states the advantages of aerial transportation, which he believes is to assume importance in the not distant future. And he evidently feels that in this, as in other things, there is nothing like "preparedness."

American Quakers are doing relief work among the children in Germany, and no one will think any the less of them for it. The German children are not responsible for the suffering to which the world has been subjected by their elders.

And still another field has been opened for investigation. The plan now is to see how far responsible enforcement agents and officers are for the apparent failures in enforcing the prohibitory law.

One of the greatest tea companies in the country has decided to confine its advertising strictly to the newspapers hereafter. It has tested all kinds and adopted the best.

Prohibition Commissioner Kramer is evidently learning from experience. He has already concluded that the United States will never be "literally dry."

Gov. Cox's Pardon of Holden

(From the Ieveland Plain Dealer)

Does the Governor of Ohio believe that eleven years in prison is an adequate penalty for the murder of two defenceless men? Does anyone believe it adequate?

The action of James M. Cox in pardoning Harry H. Holden of Cuyahoga County astonishes the community. Holden is characterized as one of the worst criminals in the county's history. He was twice convicted for first degree murder, but a merciful jury saved him from the electric chair. Instead of going to his death, the double murderer was sentenced to life imprisonment "without hope of pardon."

Without hope of pardon? Were it not for the hope of pardon any murderer would prefer the death penalty to life imprisonment.

Either the pardon of Holden was a serious mistake on the Governor's part or there are vital considerations involved of which the public is ignorant. If the latter be the fact Mr. Cox owes it to the State, and particularly to Cuyahoga County, to explain the circumstances which led to his turning loose Ieveland's "worst criminal" inside on society. The Plain Dealer will be glad to give space to any such statement the Governor may care to make.

Some Wise Words of MacCaulay

(From the Hartford Courant)

Some years ago an earnest effort was undertaken by certain good people to get God into the Constitution of the United States. They seemed to feel that, if their movement succeeded, every American citizen would go to heaven. Their effort failed, and it seems safe to assume that their fine ambition for their fellow citizens failed.

Lately the same spirit has started a movement for compelling everybody to be good along certain standards which suit the agitators. The newspapers are making much of it, but it looks to calm observers as if this was a sensational episode, not to be anxiously considered. In this connection it is of interest to note a few words of Macaulay, dropped in an obiter dicta in one of his charming essays. He says:

"When a government, not content with requiring decency, requires sanctity, it oversteps the bounds which mark its proper functions. And it may be laid down as a universal rule that a government which attempts more than it ought will perform less."

This is sound doctrine. There is a limit to the property of the government to interfere with the private rights of its citizens and this new scheme for requiring sanctity is a case in point.

Supporting Farm Bureaus

(From the New England Homestead)

It speaks well for the future of New England agriculture when farmers are responding so promptly to the $5 and $10 campaign for yearly membership in their farm bureaus. As readers have already been advised, a $10 membership was handed in Addison County, Vt., a few weeks ago with the result that 80 to 90 per cent of the farmers in different towns joined. More come in at this figure than did at the old $2 rate. Windsor and Chittenden counties in the same State are now enlisted in a similar membership drive with similar results. In Massachusetts several counties are enrolling members at $5 a year and the reports are that farmers appear to be glad to see the farm bureau abandon its shoestring policy and put organization upon a sound financial basis. When farmers will dig down into their pockets for 500 to 1000 per cent increase in dues to finance their own organization, it shows they can no longer be termed conservative, hard shells who pinch dollars until the eagle screams. It's worthy work and deserves to succeed.

Where Rooms are Warm

(From the Philadelphia Public Ledger)

Rear Admiral Newton A. McCully, who has had a career of derring-do on the quarterdeck and elsewhere, has done nothing in his life that better becomes a gallant seadog than his latest act of mercy toward seven small Russian fugitives. The admiral as our representative in the Crimea held on to the last before the fall of Wrangel, and he moved in the midst of an appalling panorama of imploring destitutions and distracted terror. At the end he took these little ones who pleaded that they might come with him to the great good place "where the rooms are warm."

For six years hunger and homelessness have been the portion of these waifs redeemed. They were robbed of their birthright to play. The little ones in these long lean years have hardly spoken, we are told, of anything but food. The pathos is that these seven children who have become wards of the good-hearted admiral are merely a few from a host no man can number. Those fortunate ones are taken; but so many must be left behind, to the vicissitudes of the crowded ships in the Bosphorus, to the life of mere scavengers ashore. It becomes of [illegible] social injunction we cannot bring them here, at least we can help them there.

A Hold-Up Game

(From the Manchester Union)

What the senators who rode triumphantly over the President's veto of the resolution reviving the War Finance Corporation were thinking about is not hard to guess. They were thinking that it would be better for them to vote the way the farmers in the big producing areas want them to vote. For the most part, it must be assumed, they are not such fools as to believe that any real good can come to anybody out of this device for the putting of an additional strain upon already overstrained credit, even to the Western and Southern farmers, but it is following a line of least resistance to permit these farmers to think that something is being done for them, and so that line is followed.

What is being put over is a hold-up game. While we of the manufacturing East and North are reducing wages—and let it be said that our workers are showing a fine spirit as the wage reductions are announced one after another—and are cutting prices at the source, standing losses the while that in some instances cut pretty nearly to the bone, the producers of the food we eat, and the cotton we work into goods, are preparing to dip into the Treasury, which is largely filled from this same manufacturing North, for millions that will, they hope, keep this same food and cotton at top prices. No sound economic theory lies back of the performance, and we hope our Southern and Western friends are sensible enough to know that. It would be rather discouraging to have to think that over great areas of our country the bulk of the producers have learned nothing about economics since the easy-money fevers of the early days of the republic were epidemic. So long as the votes can be had in the Congress, however, a possibly workable hold-up theory lies back of it, and we cannot but hope that the job is being done on this theory. That could be understood, even if not admired.

Only, we had hoped that the Congress would have the gumption and the "sand" to stand up in its shoes and prevent the hold-up.

B. & M. IS UNABLE TO PAY STATION AGENT'S SALARY

At One Station Agent's Pay Is $1,320 and Receipts Only $900.

At a recent hearing before the Public Service Commission in Concord remonstrants appeared against the proposal of the Boston and Maine to close the stations at Wakefield and Matthews on the Conway branch of the Portland Division. A large number of Wakefield residents were present and claimed that the best interests of the town and section demanded the retention of the stations.

The railroad representatives insisted that the business did not warrant the payment of the wages of the employes and in one instance pointed out that the pay roll called for $1320 per annum, while the total receipts of the station were under $900. The salary of the agent at that place had been increased from $30 per month to $10 in less than five years.

The matter was taken under advisement.

Since then the station at Matthews has been closed but Wakefield remains open.

LETTERS OF GRATITUDE

Eloquent language and illustrations in advertising may appeal to many, but after all it is the homely, sincere letters from women, overflowing with heartfelt gratitude for health restored by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, that convince other suffering women that there is a medicine that will help them also. Many such letters are being published in this paper from day to day, and it is to any woman's advantage who suffers from female ailments in any form to give this old fashioned root and herb remedy a trial.

NOTHING TO WORRY ABOUT IN TRISTAN

Buenos Aires—The island of Tristan da Cunha is described as "an unspoiled haven of rest for the weary and a Mecca for those who long for relief from worries of life," by the chaplain of the British cruiser Dartmouth which has just returned from a visit to that isolated spot.

"No need to worry over money there or there is none," said the chaplain. There are no taxes, no doctors, no lawyers, no clergymen, no policemen, not even a head man. Newspapers and mail arrive with luck about once every two years.

"There is not even any medicine, for the last supply of remedies was thrown into the sea by the inhabitants, who are remarkably healthy. Epidemics are unknown.

"Tristan is a British possession in the South Atlantic between South Africa and South America. Its snow-capped peak towers nearly 9000 feet above sea level. It is only 21 miles in circumference. The nearest inhabited place is St. Helena, 1,700 miles away.

"Sufficient potatoes are grown in plots to meet the needs of the inhabitants. Cattle and sheep were introduced years ago and many cattle now run wild. Clothes are only to be obtained by bartering from ships that call. For protection to the feet the people make moccasins of bullock hide. Wonderful socks are made by the women from wool carded by themselves.

"From June to October of this year the people had been without bread, tea, coffee and sugar, but they all looked pretty well nourished."

The reason there is no bread is that 50 or 60 years ago a shipwreck near the island allowed rats to get ashore so that since that time no wheat has been raised. But the men say that they are going to try again when the next mail in a year or two brings them some seed wheat. In the meantime, they are in no hurry; if there isn't any bread they can be contented on potatoes. And, to supplement their potatoes, fish are abundant, and cattle, and birds with their eggs, and seals. They want for many things, says the chaplain, nevertheless "there appears to be little discontent and few ever wish to leave the island."

PREDICTS RETURN OF FARMERS TO EAST

New Hampshire Education Board Would Prepare.

Concord, Jan. 12—Satisfaction over the progress made in vocational lines in New Hampshire in the last two years is expressed in the report of the State Board of Education, submitted to the Legislature yesterday.

"It is an undisputed fact," says the report, "that the swing of the pendulum resulting from unavailability of good farm lands at reasonable cost in the West is going to bring back to the East some considerable agricultural population. No factor will more definitely determine the States which will profit by this than such community influences as are represented by good schools."

The submitting of the report to the Legislature was the occasion for the introduction of resolutions by Senator Tallbanks of Newport and Representative Lord of Manchester, chairmen of the finance committees in the two branches, asking for detailed statements of the expenditures of the board and a complete salary list of its employes. The resolutions were adopted unanimously.

Several bills modifying the direct primary law were introduced in the Legislature, one providing for the nomination of representatives and local election officers by the old caucus system.

Other measures introduced would substitute a State Highway Commission for the present State Highway Department, provide for absentee voting, allow amateur baseball games on Sunday, and give the city of Manchester a new charter.

Lady Aline Azgadellan of Arcadia was introduced to the House of Representatives by Speaker Fred A. Jones, at a recess taken for that purpose, and gave a brief address on conditions in the Near East.

NEW ROUTE FOR TEST OF CAVALRY HORSES

Concord, Jan. 12—The endurance test for cavalry horse that has been held for several years over the 100 miles of road between Forth Ethan Allen, Vt., and Camp Devens, Mass., is to be held hereafter from West Point to Fort Meyer, Va.

The change became known yesterday through John D. George, of this city, who said that his nephew, Col. [illegible], the Army [illegible], who was chief there in charge of the cavalry test, had written him of it.

The new route is said to be considered more nearly central than that through New England.

Whether the attitude of officials of State societies for prevention of cruelty to animals who were active in checking up the condition of the blooded horses in the last test was not a factor in the change of route was not stated.

On the theory that public business fatigue a building contractor once introduced bagpipes to spur his Scottish workmen on. The men worked so speedily that they struck for more money.

PROTECTION FOR AMERICAN DYE INDUSTRIES

New York—A plea for Congressional action to restrict the importation of German dyes into the United States has been issued here by the American Chemical Society through Dr. Charles H. Harty, formerly resident of the organization. Dr. Harty was appointed by President Wilson to negotiate for the American share of the German dyes impounded in France after the war.

The eminent chemist calls attention to the action of Great Britain in passing an act similar to the Longworth Bill, which was passed by the United States House of Representatives and held up in the Senate Committee on Finance.

Pointing out the similarity of the dye situation confronting Great Britain and the United States, Dr. Harty recalls that during the war poison gasses were made in German dye factories and adds "when our textiles, leather, paper and other industries were smarting under the experience of servility to a foreign nation for supplies of needed dyes and thought of the nation was clear as to the necessity of a complete reinstituted American dye industry."

Although the American makers of dyes have $100,000,000 invested in factories and apparatus, prominent American chemists maintain that these manufacturers cannot withstand a German invasion without suitable legislation. They are however, equipped to manufacture 85 per cent of the dyes required by American industries and would be able according to the bulletin of American Chemical Society, to make the other 15 per cent if they had time to develop the special processes under favorable conditions.

The German dye trust, Dr. Harty declared, is shown by published reports to be stronger than ever, both in capital and in organization. Moreover, he continues, it has just made arrangements through the organization of a subsidiary company to enter the field for control of the world's supply of fixed nitrogen, the chief element in fertilizers, munitions and many dyes.

PARENT-TEACHERS HOLD INTERESTING MEETING

The vestry of the Court Street Christian church was crowded to its capacity last evening at the meeting of the Haven Parent-Teachers' Association.

The usual business meeting was held first and at its conclusion the Rev. Mr. Follansbee, pastor of the Christian church, spoke of the need of co-operation between the parents and teachers. Mr. Follansbee was engaged in educational work for many years and his remarks were most convincing.

Mr. Freeman Caswell and Mr. Stewart Humphreys sang, pleasing solos with a duet, "The Rosary" as an encore. While refreshments were being served by a committee in charge of Mrs. Lawrence Grace, Mr. Raymond Caswell presided at the piano.

The Association was fortunate in having present several members of the Board of Education, two of whom, Mr. Thayer and Mrs. Benfield, gave short addresses.

It is hoped that each meeting will bring out as many people as were present last evening and a cordial welcome is assured to all new comers.

WIFE ACCUSES MUSICIAN OF KNIFE THREAT

Mrs. Behr Asks Court for Decree to Permit Her to Sell Property.

Carl Behr, formerly leader of the Wentworth House orchestra, and who has spent some fifteen months here, is charged by his wife with threatening her with a knife. The story is told in the Boston Post and is as follows:

Pauline McLaughlin in the Suffolk jury waived session of the superior court yesterday morning and took under advisement a request of Carl Behr of Brookline, violinist, charter member of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, on a petition brought in Chancery court by Dr. Wills, M. Gertrude Behr, Christian Science practitioner, living at the Hotel Coolidge, for decree that she is living apart from him for justifiable cause and for the remedy of the disability of coverture so she may sell some of her property without his written consent.

She testified that her husband, whom she married in 1896, during his several visits, had frequent periods of violent temper, that in one threatened to shoot her, one flourished a carving knife in front of her at table, one surrounded her with the chair of office knocked over furniture.

She declared that he used to call her a "damned Christian" and "no damned Christian." Though they had an agreement not to interfere with each other's life, she declared he often [illegible] and [illegible] on the subject of Christian Science, and particularly her on the subject of "mesmerists, etc."

Regarding events of Feb. 1 when she left him, she said: I was reading quietly in the room. He appeared in the doorway and walked toward me with [illegible] and said, 'I'm going through with it now! I'm not going to give you any more money, not unless you give me the name of the Filipino that's been with you.' 'I'm going to be master in my own house; I'm going to rule you before I get through with this.' He also told me to get out of the house. I called a policeman after he had left my room and I had locked the door, but later sent the policeman away. This was my own house on Grey Hill. I packed his trunk and went to the Hotel Coolidge, where I have lived there since."

Mrs. Behr said she owned a house on Carey Hill assessed at $10,000, having a $4,000 mortgage on it, that cost $11,000 to $15,000 to build in 1909, that her husband had only put a little money into the house that she owned out of her own inheritance of $10,000 [illegible] Cook Old.

"During a visit once she said a little girl was brought into the family by her, who is three weeks old. She said the girl was her 'little patient.' When she brought the child into the family she told her husband she would tell him all about the child some day. The judge put it on the question whether the child's parents were alive.

"Mrs. Behr admitted that she had insisted on being known in name by a [illegible] of the name Behr; in other words, she insisted on being called by name sounding like Bear. She said her husband only objected to this misrepresentation when in a fit of temper.

"Mr. Behr, in report of his appeal, testified he was 67 years old; that he had played in the Symphony Orchestra 20 years ago; that his income from playing in the office was from $1500 to $3,000 usually. He denied ever threatening to strike, kill, shoot or poison his wife or that he had ever assaulted her.

"He said he had no other source of income than the $1500 or $2000 he earned.

"He denied that he lay abed in the morning but admitted that tonight have had coffee and rolls in bed on occasion.

"He admitted that he had sent his wife no money and had made no effort to keep track of her to know whether she were in good health. He denied that much of his money went in poker playing."

SOME FISHERMEN WANT NINE-INCH LOBSTER LAW

Fishermen at Kennebunkport and other seacoast towns in York County are again talking a nine-inch law for lobsters. Others on the coast further east say such a law would wipe out the entire lobster industry of the state. It will likely mean another fight in the legislature on the question.

JAP SOLDIER KILLS CRUISER ENGINEER ON U. S. WARSHIP

Tokio, Jan. 12—Newspaper dispatches received from Vladivostok report that the chief engineer of the American cruiser Albany was shot by a Japanese soldier while he was returning to his vessel at four o'clock yesterday morning, and died shortly afterward.

GAS MASKS NO GOOD IN MINE DISASTERS

Washington, D. C.—Implicit faith in an instrument that saved the lives of thousands of American soldiers in France is daily endangering the lives of scores of men in industrial life in the United States, Dr. F. G. Cottrell, director of the Bureau of Mines, said recently, in another warning against the use of safety gas masks in mine explosion and mine fires. Despite repeated warning from the department, miners and persons engaged in mine rescue work persist in using army gas masks, Dr. Cottrell said, although the devices are practically no use in the average mine disaster.

Recalling a number of cases recently where men attempting mine rescue work with army type gas masks had been overcome and died, Dr. Cottrell said:

"These fatalities illustrate the futility of the belief quite prevalent throughout the country that this army type of gas mask will protect the worker against any type of gases under all conditions. The fact is that the mask, as such, was very excellent device for the purpose intended, that of protecting our soldiers from the inhabited gases used in warfare. The mask gave the men such absolute protection that when they returned from France they were so enthusiastic over its performance they were willing to endorse the gas mask for all purposes of protection against poisonous gases. These men, it would seem, do not realize that out in the open air of the battlefield the percentage of gas in the air would not be nearly so large as in the confined spaces of a mine or factory fire.

"The army mask affords absolutely no protection against carbon monoxide gas, which is most prevalent in mine fires and factory disasters. Dr. Cottrell said, adding that the masks kill actually, he is assured, because of the false feeling of security they give the wearer.

The bureau of mines endorses the use of the self-contained oxygen mine rescue breathing apparatus and is prepared to furnish information regarding its use.

VIEWS OF GRANITE STATE SENATORS ON HARDING'S DECISION

Washington, Jan. 12—"I think the country wanted to see the Harding administration go in with a bang and the Wilson administration go up in smoke," said Senator Moses in commenting on the decision of President-elect Harding to abandon the proposed trip for the custom elaborate ceremonial at his inauguration. "For that reason I feel sure the country will be heartsatisfied, economy and thrift notwithstanding."

While Senator Moses unquestionably expressed the sentiments of many enthusiastic Republicans, the general sentiment of Congress and the almost unanimous sentiment of the New England delegation stands firmly in favor of the new plan.

Senator Gilbert said it was setting the right pace for the country to follow. Senator Brandegee remarked that a simple dignified inaugural was much more suited to a Republican form of government.

Senator Keyes said, "The plan means heartless economization and the new administration will start a truly wholesale example of economy and thrift."

Many Republican Democrats who complain [illegible] with the decision of the President-elect, saying the whole country should profit by the example.

LOW CUT GOWNS CAUSE OF NO MORE EVENING WEDDINGS

Evening weddings at Calvary Protestant Episcopal church at Pittsburgh are forbidden under an order of Rev. E. J. Van Etten, the pastor, made public today. This action conforms with his New Year's sermon when, in a review of the times, he paid much attention to evening gowns worn by women. He commented on "the lack of decorum often manifested" and said that some of the gowns did not conform with the sacred character of marriage.

SIX THOUSAND GREEK REFUGEES AT BATUM

New York.—Six thousand Greek refugees, at Batum, Trans-Caucasia, their clothing worn to shreds, are "living like wild animals in dens" and dying at the rate of from 25 to 70 a day, writes Dr. W. E. Rambo, a Near East Relief worker, of West Philadelphia, Pa., in a report from the Black Sea port received here.

In what he calls "a tragic exodus that bids to become historic," Dr. Rambo says the Greek government already has repatriated 20,000 who emigrated from the near east to colonies. These and that from 10,000 to 12,000 remain to be transported from Batum back to their homeland. Most of these, he says, are physically strong but 5,000 refugees from other regions who flocked to Batum in the expectation of relief have been in that city five months, waiting in vain for help, their condition daily becoming more desperate on account of the rigors of the present Georgian winter.

The Greek government, Dr. Rambo explains, disclaiming responsibility for the plight of the people has undertaken chronic humane considerations only to feed and doctor the refugees but, so far, has declined to transport them to Greece on the ground that there is insufficient housing there to shelter them.

"Meanwhile," the letter says, "the 6,000 are over-crowded in barracks unfit for human habitation. The typhus have no privacy. Some are living in bed day and night because they have no clothing to protect them from the cold or cover their nakedness. Unless speedy relief comes to these people two-fifths of them will die during the winter. Already the remnants of the original refugees are in despair. One of them said to me: 'We are no longer waiting for ships; we are waiting for death.' Of 5,767 in this party in the beginning only about 2,400 remain. 3,367 are dead. Another party of 6,800 has 2,860 survivors. 3,940 are dead. Of the survivors 700 are ill."

FAITH IN AGRICULTURAL AND INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT

(From the Boston Transcript)

Faith in the possibilities of industrial and horticultural development in northern New England is expressed in the inaugural messages of the governors of the three Northern States. It is significant of the trend of the times that much of their addresses is devoted to the problem of the farmer and the business man and to the related problems of transportation and the conservation of natural resources.

Governor Hartness of Vermont recognizes the effect of the state of the public mind upon the material forces of a state or a section. He calls for a campaign which will give Vermont full appreciation of their opportunities and so increase their faith in the Green Mountain State, the governor evidently proceeding on the assumption that "it is a case where faith would be justified by works. It was a forward-looking address, as was shown incidentally, in the recommendation that towns should provide holding places for tuberculoses.

Governor Brown of New Hampshire, in his discussion of the possibilities of the development of agriculture, goes to the heart of the matter with his declaration that farming must be made to pay. He sees possibility of gain for present system of cooperative marketing. There is in the address a striking illustration of the extent to which New England is needlessly dependent upon other regions for its food supply. Governor Brown states that last year there was expended for agricultural products that might have been raised at home but were bought outside the State, the sum of $17,750,000, being equivalent to $59 for every farmer in New Hampshire. Much of the food consumed in New England must necessarily come from beyond her borders, but it is evident that we are now buying from outside sources vast quantities that could profitably be raised at home.

Governor Brown speaks briefly of the desirability of the conservation of water power. That is a subject which Governor Parkhurst of Maine discusses at greater length. He favors hydro-electric development by private capital under State regulation, and with the provision that all the power so developed shall be used within the State for the purpose of making it attractive to new industries. This doctrine that power developed in Maine should be used only in Maine is embodied in a fixed policy in the Pine Tree State. It has been endorsed by all the governors who have served during the past twelve years. But whether in the long run it will prove to be as wise a policy as the Maine folk believe it to be is quite another question. In connection with it, Governor Parkhurst speaks of the need of suitable encouragement in transportation in dealing with the development both of agriculture and the fisheries by place emphasis upon the value of technical training and urges enlarged effort by the State in that direction.

In these days of profound change in many directions, it is encouraging to find that faith in the future of New England is not only being maintained but that it is growing. The governors recognize the gravity of the problems with which this section of the country is confronted, but through the inaugural addresses runs a note of optimism and it is optimism supported by reason and arguments rather than by mere blind devotion to the several New England States.

CHILD SAVING WORK IN ARMENIA TOLD BY AN AMERICAN

Charles V. Vickrey Gives Facts of Near East Relief Program for Orphans.

Charles V. Vickrey, general secretary of the Near East Relief, has returned from a trip of inspection throughout Central Europe and the Near East, and made a report to the trustees of the Near East Relief in which he carves in detail the actual work of child saving now being conducted by the great American relief organization in the Near East. Mr. Vickrey believes that "a few millions of dollars wisely expended at this time in the education of the children of the Near East, in character building and in moulding these young lives, will be worth vastly more to the world than billions of dollars spent later in suppressing international warfare and strife."

Mr. Vickrey considers the need in the Near East and especially in Armenia greater than anywhere else in the world, because, as he says, "In the countries of Central Europe there are going governments which have merely been temporarily impoverished by war. In the Near East, on the other hand, there is no such thing as stable government. The whole fabric of the state has to be created from the beginning, and the innocent and helpless children have to be trained to the responsibilities of future citizenship. Peace in the Near East and, in great measure, throughout the world, will depend very largely on the character of the citizenship of the peoples of the Near East."

Irresistible Appeal of Orphans.

Describing the orphanage work of the Near East Relief in the Armenian Republic, Mr. Vickrey said:

"We have at Alexandropol in the Caucasus, one orphanage where there are approximately 10,000 homeless children, fatherless or motherless, many of them having no known living relative. Some of them do not even know their own names, or the place of their birth. They have shown wonderful recuperative powers, and to see them play their kindergarten or other games under the direction of our American relief workers, one could never believe that they had passed through the years of suffering that most of them have experienced since they, or their parents, were driven from their homes in Central Turkey five years ago.

"For the accommodation of these orphans there are sixty splendid stone buildings, erected as barracks for the Russian army. These buildings are now given to us by the Armenian government for a period of ten years and lend themselves admirably to relief purposes.

"This orphanage at Alexandropol is but one of the 220 orphanages that the Near East Relief is now operating in various parts of the Caucasus, Anatolia, Cilicia, Syria and the Constantinople-Straits area.

"Thirty miles from Alexandropol, at Kars, there is another group of Russian army barracks, which were given us by the Armenian government for relief purposes. I was going through the dormitories of this orphanage at Kars when the young American college girl in charge turned to me and said: 'Mr. Vickrey, it sometimes makes me feel just a little older than Methuselah to be called "Mother" by 6,000 of these Armenian children.' And that is exactly what she was—the only mother that these 6,000 Armenian children have, except as she avails herself of the organized assistance of native Armenian women, in caring for this large family.

"In the hospital at Kars I found 1,150 beds, which, the day I was there, were occupied by 1,268 patients, a frequently being necessary to put two or more children in a single bed. At Alexandropol we have in our hospital, or group of hospital buildings, 1,500 tuberculous patients. At Karaklis, forty miles east of Alexandropol, we have an orphanage devoted exclusively to the care and training of the blind children. At Delijan we have another orphanage, located on a mountain side, for the care of tubercular children, this segregation being as much for the welfare of the healthy children in the orphanages as for the care of the unfortunate consumptives. At Erivan we formerly had twenty-six distinct orphanages. Though they have now been shipped and consolidated to seven in number. There are something more than 5,000 orphans in the region of Hergouni."

Armenian President Asks American Aid

Dr. H. Ohandjanian
Armenian President

Erivan, Armenia; Dr. H. Ohandjanian, President of the Armenian Republic, has sent an urgent cablegram to Charles V. Vickrey, General Secretary of the Near East Relief, 1 Madison Ave., New York City, requesting immediate assistance to prevent the starvation of the Armenian people before the next harvest can be gathered. President Ohandjanian's message reads:

"Owing to hail, rain and field mice, the harvest in Armenia fell below expectations. Standing crops appeared well, but owing to poor seed, returns were not as good as was expected. Maximum returns 120,000 tons, only sufficient for eight months for one and a half million people. Food crisis critical and intensified by new Turkish invasion of Armenia. It is estimated that 1,000,000 peaceful inhabitants of Surkamish and Kars region have been forced to renew the life of refugees and flee towards the interior of Armenia. There are also large numbers fleeing from Bolsheviks in Azerbaijan and Southern Russia, and coming to Armenia. Farmers, fearing famine, are unwilling to sell crops, thus leaving the cities foodless. In addition to the Armenian crops, ten thousand tons have been purchased from neighboring countries.

"In order to save Armenia it is necessary to secure flour from America, 50,000 tons, maximum rapidity. In the name of the Armenian Government and the Armenian People, I beg that you use your wide influence in order that the Near East Relief may secure and ship the flour needed. I am sure that in this serious crisis the Near East Relief will not fail to continue its aid to Armenia in her struggle for existence.

"H. OHANDJANIAN,
"President of Armenia."

GOB DESCRIBES ARMENIAN HORRORS

"You can't realize what a sight it is to see the refugee camp at Batum," Petty Officer George Carter, of Racine, Wis., writes his family, telling of the work of the Near East Relief in the ports along the Black Sea.

"The people are dying off little by little. There are workers of the relief organization here, but they don't seem to be able to take care of them all. They were the ones that made the camp. The families all live in grass huts, just high enough to sit up in, and they are covered with blankets. There is disease everywhere and the smell is terrible. I'm glad we didn't stay long, as I couldn't stand it, and you know when I can't stand anything there are few that can. I am sorry for these refugees, but we can't help any. They don't want money, though they would sell their lives for some clothes and food. They don't stop praising the Americans.

"Trebizonde was another Armenian town, but it was completely wiped out by the Turks, who are now in control of it. The Turks massacred all the Armenians over fifteen years of age and kept all under that age to bring them up as Turks. The city looked as if it was shot to pieces. Samsoun is the same as Trebizonde, so you can see what kind of country we are travelling through. I am sure glad that we are leaving Russia and Armenia because I am sick of what I have seen. I think that those tourists who are trying to see ravished Armenia will be sorry they ever came over. These relief workers are nearly dead from work. They are the people who can tell the U. S. something about this country."

The Near East Relief, 1 Madison Ave., New York, is now appealing for funds to continue the work so graphically described by the young American sailor.

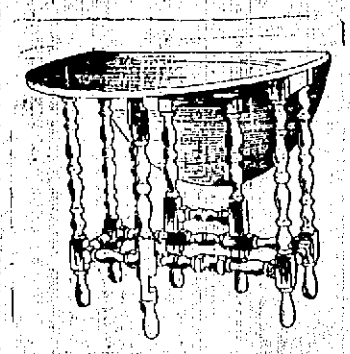
HASSETT'S



First Friend to the Bride.

Ask almost any bride what gift she is the most pleased with and she will answer that it is her gate-legged table.

It isn't so much a question of what the gate-legged table is good for—it can be used in so many ways that the query is narrowed down to what it isn't good for—and the answer is, Nothing!

If the dining room suite is delayed in coming, the gate-legged table fits in as a temporary dining table, or if the bride starts housekeeping in a small apartment it can serve as permanent dining table. It can be made large or small as fancy dictates and will harmonize with any style of furniture. It can be used on a summer porch as a place for magazines and books, or in the Winter library. Altogether it is a most useful piece of furniture.

You can find them, together with many other attractive tables, at Margeson Brothers.'

ENDS DUTIES AT LOCAL Y. M. C. A.

General Secretary Schmalzried to Leave for Indiana.

LeRoy C. Schmalzried, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A. for the past two years, who recently tendered his resignation from that organization, will leave on Jan. 21 for Andrews, Indiana, his former home, having accepted a position with De Huntington Grocery Company.

Mr. Schmalzried has done able work with the Y. M. C. A. since coming to this city and his resignation is a loss to the organization. Previous to entering upon the work here he had been in the service, coming here from Camp Devens. He was associated with the Y. M. C. A. at Northampton, Mass., for four years, the first two years having charge of boys' work and the last two years as general superintendent of that Association. While there his work was most successful and he was instrumental in securing legislation in that city, by which laws were passed prohibiting very young newsboys from selling papers after certain hours at night, and from entering saloons for that purpose; and to become newsboys it was necessary in that town to have a license from the superintendent of schools. Several cities later took up and carried out the same idea.

The good work Mr. Schmalzried has done in this city gives evidence of his ability. Coming here when the Y. M. C. A. work had been much interrupted by the war he reorganized the whole program and brought the membership up to the highest mark it had ever reached. He started classes and Bible study and religious meetings were later held and he made a specialty of boys' work.

Mr. Schmalzried is a graduate of De Pauw University, Green Castle, Ind., and while at college was prominent in athletics and the only freshmen who made a college varsity team winning his numeral in football and basketball. In his freshman year he was considered one of the best players on the basket ball and selected as a member of the college all state team. He was also prominent in athletics at Camp Devens when in the service.

At the Y. M. C. A. Mr. Schmalzried is well known as an athlete and he ably coached the High School football team this year. He played basketball also with the professional teams.

The work done for ex-service men by the local Y. M. C. A. is well worthy of note. Aid was given them in securing their bonus, looking up back payments, help to receive vocational work for disabled men, scholarships; also reinstating and converting government insurance. Fully 800 ex-service men have been helped through the work of the local Association.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Schmalzried have made many friends in this city and the Methodist Society where they are active workers will be much missed.

Ferdinand Burns, who claims Baltimore as his home, was sent to the House of Correction today for 60 days on the charge of vagrancy. He was recently discharged from the navy and has been hanging around this city since. The police sent him to Boston on Saturday last on a promise that he would not return. He showed up again on Tuesday and was placed under arrest.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

An engagement party was held Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Drehle of Bennett street, announcing the engagement of their daughter Ethel to Mr. Irving I. Gould of this city.

Among the out of town guests present were Mr. and Mrs. Morris Gould and Mr. Gould from Malden, Mass. Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Loving from Wakefield, Mass., Miss Fanny Klotz from Manchester, N. H., and Mr. and Mrs. Max Pollmer, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Pollmer, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Pollmer Miss Dorothy Pollmer, Mr. and Mrs Nathan Levine, Mr. and Mrs. H. B Levine, Miss Esther Levine and Mr Morris Dreher from Dorchester, Mass.

A very enjoyable time was spent by all.

MET WITH MRS. BICKFORD

The Christian Service League held an interesting meeting Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Frank J. Bickford on Highland street and not with Mrs. Richard Hannaford as was erroneously stated in the Herald. The League will have its next meeting at the home of Mrs. Hannaford when a cake sale and social will be enjoyed. At the meeting on Monday evening a spread was tacked and quilted for Northland College and a sum of money contributed to the Hoover fund for starving children. The hostess, Mrs Bickford, served refreshments and it was an unusually pleasant meeting of the League.

BOARD OF PUBLIC WORKS SHORT OF FUNDS

The regular meeting of the Board of Public Works was held on Tuesday evening and the matter of the annual budget was discussed. The report of the Superintendent showed a big decrease in revenue in the water department. With the closing of the Atlantic shipyard and the reduction at the local forts, and many vacant houses at Atlantic Heights and closing of other industries it becomes necessary to reduce the city expenses. Mr. Smith stated that it was either necessary to lay off many of the workmen or reduce the pay of those on the roll. The board hopes to be able to keep the men on the rolls with the same cut proposed by the pumping station men.

MAN AND AUTO PUSHED 90 FEET BY LOCOMOTIVE

"Never Mind Me, But Look at My Car," Was His Reply to Trainman.

A cat with nine lives had nothing on a man and his Ford at the Candia station of the Portsmouth branch of the B. & M. on Tuesday. The excitement all happened just as Engineer Charles Hoitt of the Portsmouth train was pulling into the station bound north.

Suddenly, on the crossing, a Ford and driver appeared. The engineer applied the air brakes and opened up the locomotive whistle but could not check the speed of the train in time to prevent bumping the Detroit product. The pilot struck the machine right between the front and rear wheels with the driver still at the steering gear. In this position he took a ride sideways for nearly 100 feet. Finally the trip ended and the train crew and passengers rushed to the head of the locomotive expecting to find the Ford in smithereens and the driver in condition for the hospital or ready for the services of a medical referee. Nothing like that. He was very much alive and the famous motor vehicle was all there but one wheel.

Trainman Wheeler rushing up to the driver, grabbed him by the clothing, and inquired if he was hurt. "Never mind me, but look at my Ford," was his reply.

Besides a slight cut on the face, his feelings were much hurt over the partial wreck of his Henry. The conductor took account of the accident, names of witnesses and the train pulled out for Manchester.

That there were no more serious features connected with the unexpected trip of the Candia man and his car, was due ot the slow speed of the train approaching the station.

LIVELY MEETING HELD BY P. A. C.

Much Interest in the Tournament With Elks Which Opens Tonight.

A largely attended meeting was held at the Portsmouth Athletic Club last evening, president John S. Parker presiding, and considerable business transacted. The coming minstrel show to be given by the club members was talked over and rehearsals will start next week.

General Manager Fred E. Hasty was unable to be present, but the show was outlined by Pres. Parker who requested a full attendance at the first rehearsal.

Work will be started on the new recreation room in the basement in a few days and on completion will make a much needed room for the fast increasing membership.

Everything is in readiness for the first meeting of the interclub series with the Elks which occurs tonight at the P. A. C. Cribbage, pool and billiards will be the events for the evening.

The billiard team of the P. A. C. is especially strong this winter and much is expected from them. Several of the Elks billiard squad are not entered in the tourney, they not having sufficient practice. However, they expect to even up matters in pool and crib.

Five new members were elected at the meeting some of whom will be valuable material for the minstrel show.

RECEPTION FOR CITY CLUB OFFICERS

A regular meeting of the Woman's City Club will be held on Thursday forenoon at 9.30 at the Woman's building and will be made the occasion of a reception for the incoming officers. After the reception there will be information given and an exhibition of the work accomplished by the ladies' Guild of Edut in the line of Arts and Crafts. This will no doubt be attractive to many, especially as the City Club is contemplating forming a department for such handicraft.

The new officers will appoint the various committees for the current year and the chairman of each committee with the officers will form the Board of Directors. Plans are being made for many activities during the coming months and a keen interest is shown in all the affairs by members of the Club.

NAVAL AVIATORS REACH CIVILIZATION FROM WILDS OF CANADA

Arrive at Mattice on Tuesday Afternoon From Moosefactory--Farrell and Hilton Come to Blows Over Reports Sent Out by Letter--Men and Newspapermen Start by Train For Home

(By Associated Press)

Mattice, Ont. Jan. 11—The three American naval balloonists, stranded near the Hudson Bay, when their big ship dropped after a flight from Rockaway, L. I., reached the railhead here today, after mushing it down from Moose factory. The three men were in excellent condition and they reported that there was nothing of importance in their sled ride through the wilderness back to civilization with a small army of newspaper men left to the party of Indian guides.

Lieut. Hilton and Lieut. Farrell of came to blows this afternoon as a sensational climax to their flight back into civilization from the frozen wilds. Alleged statements purported to have been made by Lt. Hilton about Lt. Farrell in a letter to Lt. Hilton's wife, which was made public, lead to the quarrel, Lieut. Farrell knocking Hilton down with a blow on the jaw. Newspapermen separated the men, but they parted without shaking hands. The men accompanied by the small army of newspaper men left together on the train for the first stage of their journey home.

The three men Lieut. Kloor, Lieut. Stephen A. Farrell and Lieut. Walter Hinton camped last night at Skunk Island 20 miles from Mattice and they were met down the trail today by some newspapermen who had hired the local guides to take them out to meet the party. Representative of the Canadian Mounted police gave them an efficient welcome.

PULLS TEETH FROM SMITH-TOWNER BILL

(By Associated Press)

Washington, Jan. 11—The Smith-Towner bill long before Congress for the creation of a department of education, was reported by the House committee today. As amended by the committee the course of studies and plans for carrying out the act in all of the states are left to the state and local authorities to decide, thus removing the objection raised by many organizations that the bill would centralize the control of the schools in a Washington commission.

MINORS TO MEET WITH MAJOR LEAGUE

(By Associated Press)

Chicago, Jan. 11—The committee of the Minor and Major baseball league meeting today agreed to accept the national agreement which makes Judge Landis the czar of baseball and the final action will be taken tomorrow at a joint meeting of the Major and Minor leagues.

BRAZILIANS UNFRIENDLY TO THE U. S.

Rio De Janeiro.—Considerable anti-United States sentiment in Brazil is resulting from newspaper comment on the unfavorable situation growing out of the high rate of exchange for the American dollar in the last five months. During this period the value of the Brazilian milreis has dropped from 25 to 16 1-2 cents to the dollar, its lowest mark in more than 20 years.

Almost daily one or more newspapers editorially charge United States banks and trusts with being responsible for the local situation, urging merchants to discontinue purchases from North America and suggesting governmental action to prevent control of native products by United States trusts. Most of the local newspapers ignore explanations of foreign bankers that the drop in exchange is due to lack of balance in trade.

United States banks operating in Brazil are charged in these editorials with exchange speculation, while North American trusts are declared to be attempting a monopoly on Brazilian products, particularly rubber, which some of the more violent editorials attribute to the "expansionist policy" of the United States government.

President Pessoa is charged by the anti-government section of the press with unduly favoring United States capital and commercial interests. These attacks on the president have been intensified during the last week since he has ordered registration of a concession to a North American iron and steel syndicate headed by Percival Farquahar to operate mines and smelters in Brazil. This concession had previously been refused registration by the Tribunal de Contas, which passes judgment on governmental contracts and concessions.

AUSTRIAN GOVERNMENT AT END OF ROPE

(By Associated Press)

London, Jan. 11—The Austrian government has announced to the Entente that it has reached the end of its resources and no longer is in a position to continue, according to reports which have reached official circles in Germany, says a dispatch from Berlin to the London Times. The government announces its determination to recline on Jan. 15 and place the administration in the hands of the reparation committee.

OFFICIAL KISSING DISCONTINUED

Paris.—Official kissing, hitherto a regular feature of Presidential functions in France is being discontinued by President Millerand.

Recipients of the Legion of Honor decorated personally by the President, women students at universities who had won prizes, little girls presenting bouquets and small boys reciting verses of welcome, have all in the past been invariably embraced by the President, who it was estimated, kissed a thousand French faces bearded and unbearded, every year.

MAY POSTPONE CABINET SELECTION

Marion, O., Jan. 11—President-elect Harding's cabinet selection tonight hinged on so many uncertain elements, that he may postpone the announcement of his cabinet until the last minute, with one exception. The one thing in regard to which he is certain as secured is that of Secretary of State for which Mr. Harding holds Charles E. Hughes of New York uppermost in his mind. It is understood however that no word has come through Mr. Hughes as to his willingness to accept.

AUTO BANDITS WERE THREE BROTHERS

New Bedford, Jan. 11—Three alleged auto bandits who have been operating in this section of New England, were rounded up by the police today. They are George, Wilfred and Joseph Vanverse, whose ages range from 23 to 28 years of age. They were captured in bed in their homes here and their bullet scarred cars was found in the yard. Under police grilling they admitted a recent $5000 jewelry robbery in Taunton and numerous other hold-ups and hi-jacks. Part of the loot was found at their home.

ATLANTIC FLEET AT GUANTANAMO CUBA

Guantanamo, Cuba, Jan. 11—The United States Atlantic fleet arrived in Guantanamo Bay today and will leave on Jan. 17 for Panama. The fleet sailed from Hampton Roads Jan. 5 for joint maneuvers and battle practice with the Pacific fleet, which is to meet at Panama, and a subsequent voyage down the west coast of South America.

FORCED TO WITNESS HIS BROTHER'S MURDER

(By Associated Press)

Belfast, Ire. Jan. 11—John Doran, a prominent Sinn Feiner of Cumbaugh, Lock Armagh, which has been the scene of many recent attacks, was taken from his bed in his father's house shortly before midnight last night and after a distressing scene in the house was taken outside by seven armed and masked men and shot dead. A brother was forced to witness the killing of his brother and his sister was badly injured in her effort to save her brother.

MAYORS ARE OPPOSING NAVY YARD CUTS

Washington, Jan. 11—Cities in which navy yards are located are pleading with the Navy Department not to curtail construction and repair operations beginning Feb. 1, as is planned. Mayors are telling Secretary Daniels that any cessation of work will swell the ranks of the unemployed in their respective cities and that the Government should help relieve hard times. They also are conferring with their representatives in Congress urging that bills be quickly passed increasing appropriations for navy yards and naval stations.

Mayor F. W. Hartford of Portsmouth, N. H. who conferred with the secretary today, said that in the city alone 2000 men would be thrown out of work if the department's plans were carried out. He urged that warships be sent to Portsmouth for repairs and asked if it would not be possible to use the yards to repair vessels now operated by the Shipping Board. Later in the day he conferred with Chairman Benson of the board.

MANCHESTER SHOE OPERATIVES REMAIN FIRM

Manchester, N. H. Jan. 11—None of the 2000 operatives of the McElwain shoe factory had returned to work today. The employes, who have been out of work several weeks, refused to return when announcement was made that the factory would reopen under a scale of wages bringing the pay back to the average of 1919.

It was believed the company officials and representatives of the union workers might confer today. A conference scheduled for yesterday did not take place. Employes of the factory have held mass meetings daily since the proposed wage cut was announced, but have not decided how large a reduction they will accept. Operatives desire to have the company announce the new wage speedily before they return.

FOUND HIS BUDDIE A BURGLAR

(By Associated Press)

New York, Jan. 11—Police Officer Patrick Inglis seized on Robert Miller, aged 24, an alleged burglar and covering another with his revolver, learned that the prostrate man was a former buddie in the famous "lost battalion" in the Argonne forest. He captured the two men at the top of a building where they had fled after robbing a house and as he was affixing the handcuffs to his former pal, other policemen arrested another man suspected of being one of the gang, as he hid in the dumbwaiter.

ANCIENT MILITARY TROPHIES

London.—Great Britain's most ancient military trophies, a Roman battle standard and a Roman general's folding camp chair have just been sold for £200 at a London auction room. The antiquities were dug up in Essex a century ago.

Experts believe that the battle standard and the camp chair were captured or lost in the disaster that overtook the Roman Ninth legion in A. D. 61, when Boadicea, Queen of the Iceni, cut the legion to pieces as it advanced to relieve Colchester, Boadicea's Britons having burned Roman Colchester, turned upon the Ninth legion, surprised and destroyed it. The cavalry alone got away, and it is believed that the relics were abandoned on the field.

The standard and the chair are in perfect preservation. The former is a slight and elegant thing in bronze, topped by four laurel wreaths of diminishing size. Below is a medallion, bearing on one side a portrait of Nero, and on the other an inland design showing the Emperor in a triumphal car holding a palm branch and a wreath. The chair is beautifully worked in iron overlaid in silver, folding like a modern camp stool.

The public library of Dallas, Tex., is uses phonograph records the same as books.

KEEPING FARM RECORDS AID TO BETTER USES AND PROFIT

In order to know what progress is being made in farm operations and to determine what crops or branches of farming are producing the greatest profits, it is necessary for the farmer to keep a system of accounts, say specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. The practice will not of itself turn a poor farm into a rich one, a poor farmer into a good one, or losses into profits, but farm records, if accurately kept and intelligently utilized, are an aid to a better understanding and insight into the farming business.

The keeping of accounts need not take a great amount of time nor is it necessary to have an elaborate system. In fact, the specialists say, the simpler the system of accounts the greater the chance for it to prove of value.

Two Kinds Advisable

Farm records may be roughly divided into two heads—records of happenings and records of money transactions. The former proves useful when memory fails. Among the happenings that should be recorded are the dates when animals are bred, men hired or discharged, accidents occur, pasture season begins and ends, first and last frosts occur, incubators are set, spring work begins and fall work ends, seed time and harvest occur, etc. Such notes as these, when systematically recorded and constantly referred to, are of much value.

The most important use many farmers make of the records of cash received and paid out is as a means of checking up bills when sent in to see whether all payments have been duly credited. While this alone is only a small part of the value which can be derived from such records, it will frequently justify the time required to keep them.

When the year's record is made the cash account can be assembled under headings that will show exactly what each branch of the farm activities returned in cash and what each required to keep it going. Some farmers are apt to judge the importance of the various farm projects by the time required to put them through. To such a complete cash record for a year, properly assembled, will be an eye opener. Often seemingly unimportant things, such as the flock of poultry or the orchard, produce nearly as much net cash as the obviously important.

A single year's figures will occasionally indicate that the farming business is not being managed properly or that some phase of it is radically wrong. They may show where the net expenses of one farm enterprise are a great drain on the net cash returns made by the others. All phases of such an enterprise should be carefully studied and, unless the loss can be assigned to a bad season, temporarily adverse market conditions, epidemics, or similar unusual conditions, it may often be dropped with profit.

At some regular time each year—usually about the first of the calendar year—a farm inventory should be made. In any system of accounting the inventory is absolutely essential, as upon it is based the division of one year's business from another. The inventory is simply a statement showing how stock, supplies, and produce for sale, the land, buildings, equipment on hand are worth at the time the record is made, together with amount of cash on hand and money owing to and owed by the farmer. It is a list of farm property and farm debts, and corresponds to the "stock taking" which every merchant does periodically.

An Aid to Credit

Taken alone, the inventory will show a farmer the exact net value of his property, and will be a guaranty of solvency and an aid in securing credits and loans from the bank in time of need. The inventories of two dates, a year apart, show whether progress or retrogression has occured during the year and definitely measure the degree of change.

Taken in conjunction with a cash account for the year the inventory shows how much has been made by farming and to what extent the personal and household expenses have offset profits. It also gives a much better insight into the income produced by each farm department, as a decrease in inventory value of hogs, for instance, may offset to some extent what, from the cash account, looks like a very large income from that source.

LLOYD GEORGE TELLS PUBLIC TO PRACTICE THRIFT

London.—Premier Lloyd George has adopted the example of President-elect Harding of the United States and issued an appeal to the public to practice thrift. "I have seen a very sound and sensible appeal by the newly elected president of the United States to the American people for all round economy and I make the same appeal to the people of this country" said the Premier at a dinner of the Federation of British Industries.

Mr. Lloyd George warned his hearers that a period of great and inevitable depression was coming and the question was, he said, how to shorten or to mitigate its evils.

"Europe is standing in front of our shop windows," he went on, "it wants to buy, but it is in rags and its pockets are full of paper. In the good book there is a great story of men who reconstructed a broken city with a trowel in one hand and a sword in the other, but Europe must get to work with both hands.

"Let the government set the example to the nation—yes, but let the nation set the example to the government.

CENTRAL FACTION OF SOCIALISTS COMBAT LENINE

Paris.—Lenine's attempt to rule and unite the socialists of the world and control their policies through the operations of the Third Internationale of Moscow is to be contested by the central party, or faction, of socialists. This party occupies a middle position between the extreme right, or moderate faction, of socialists and the extreme left, or radical faction. It was in order to organize their forces into a Fourth Internationale that a meeting of the Centrist Socialists of the world has been called in Vienna on February 22 next.

The center socialists are dissatisfied with both the Second Internationale and the Third Internationale of Lenine, leaders of that faction say. Joseph Hollomb, who claims to have represented the Socialist Party of America at a meeting in Berne, Switzerland, December 5, which called a meeting at Vienna next February to form the proposed Fourth Internationale, declares that the socialists of the world have become impatient at the conduct of Lenine's Third Internationale of Moscow. The Russian organization, he declares, "is devoting itself chiefly to splitting the forces of socialism and of the workers."

"Dominated by the chiefs of the Communist Party of Russia," Gollomb alleges, "the Third Internationale is trying to force on other countries a program, temper and tactics which whether good for Russia or not, takes no account of differences of conditions throughout the world. Those socialists who do not accept to the letter their phrases are denounced as traitors. The Third Internationale is splitting socialist parties in every country, discarding whole masses of workers whose fidelity to socialism has been proved and, by dividing the trade union movement, sows hatred between worker and worker."

Gollomb contends that both the Second Internationale which existed before the world war and the Third Internationale are "mainly negative in character and effect." The members of the Second Internationale, he says, "have so limited, compromised and forgotten the principles of socialism that there is nothing left of them. At the Conference at Berne pointed out, they abandoned the workers during the war and, by participating in capitalist cabinets and coalitions they have bent all their energies toward patching the present system instead of building a new one.

"Socialists want an adequate international organization to marshal all their forces and to carry out a positive upbuilding program. At present there is no satisfactory organization."

Gollomb declares that fundamentally, socialism is a constructive movement and that the negative attitude of the Second and Third Internationale, does not meet their need today and the result has been general dissatisfaction with both of them. He asserts that more than 8,500,000 voting socialists were represented at the Berne conference which has called the meeting in Vienna and that most of the delegates at Berne have been representative figures in International socialism for years. The delegates of the Socialist Party of America were delayed in arriving, but Gollomb says the party had declared itself officially in favor of the action taken at Berne. The German Independents were represented by Ledebour, Crispien and others, while Jean Longuet and Paul Faure represented the socialists of France. Socialists of Austria and Switzerland also were represented at Berne.

"The possible formation of a Fourth Internationale is a matter for the Vienna Congress to decide," adds Gollomb, "but the outlook is that this gathering will become the center of gravity for the socialists and working class movement throughout the world."

CLAIMS CUBA WAS FORCED TO CANCEL PERMIT

Washington, Jan. 10—Charges that the State Department was making threats against the Cuban Government to prevent their issuance of permits for Western Union cable landings on the island were made before the committee today by Newcomb Carlton, president of the Western Union company.

Mr. Carlton declared the department "was pursuing to the point of persecution" its differences with the company over the attempt to land the cable from Barbados which would establish a new line of communication with South America.

Questioned as to alleged supervision by English authorities of official despatches sent from Washington to American diplomatic representatives in Great Britain, Mr. Carlton refused to "answer categorically because it would make trouble." He said the State department had the facts and Senator Kellogg, the chairman of the committee, asked Under-Secretary of State Davis to appear this afternoon.

Senator Kellogg asked Mr. Carlton if the Cuban Government actually had revoked the permit for landing the Barbados cable in Cuba.

"I understand the document revoking the permit is now before the President of Cuba for signature" Mr. Carlton responded. "But the Cuban Government, of course, is loathe to do because the act of the State department is an affront to its dignity but it cannot resist, because it is not in a condition to do so."

The statement was made at the State Department last week that the action of the Cuban Government in refusing to permit the cable to land had been taken without any suggestion from the American government.

Another instance of "State department persecution" Mr. Carlton said, was given in the recent refusal to allow the Western Union Telegraph Company to ship to the United States from England 140 miles of cable loaded upon a ship which was bringing some smaller lots of cable to a subsidiary of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company. The State department threatened to refuse the Bell company the right to transport its cable, the witness asserted, if the Western Union supplies were carried along with it.

Frederick Roy Martin, acting general manager of the Associated Press, told the committee that any increase of communication facilities aided dissemination of American news.

"The Associated Press is furnishing its news reports to Porto Rico, Hawaii, Alaska and Mexico" he said. "And has gone very extensively into South America. Our reports on the Pacific are sent by radio and incidentally copied for free distribution to Japan and China. This is an unprofitable field and we are keeping it up for patriotic motives to maintain the connection between the United States and its possessions."

South American readers, Mr. Martin said, desired news from the United States and the only difficulty in the service was the lack of cable facilities.

Senator Kellogg asked if the Government could assist news distribution.

"Only by facilitating private interests in extending cable facilities" Mr. Martin replied. "The Associated Press does not want any Government subsidy. We should like to see direct cables to Italy and the Scandinavian countries.

"We have had our troubles with Government censorship during the last few years. I will say for our English friends that their censorship is no stricter than our own. Only last Saturday we found that the Navy Department was censoring a despatch from San Francisco.

"It has been a deep disappointment to us to find that American cables to South America could not give us sufficient facilities and we have been forced to contract with the English Western Company, at London, to carry a million words a year to our South American papers."

George T. Hargreaves, representing the Universal News Service, said lack of facilities, United press service and also told of difficulties encountered in reaching South America.

WIND IS STRANGE, POWERFUL FORCE

In the popular mind the distinctive characteristics of air are its invisibility and intangibility. We can hear the sound it carries, we can feel its force pushing against us, we can sense the cold caused it to droop. Members of the degree of its cooling effect; but farther than that we are unfamiliar with its actions.

It is only recently that mankind has had any inclination to concern himself with the internal actions of the wind.

Our knowledge is derived from crude methods of investigation. Thus the meteorologist, desiring to know the speed and direction of atmospheric air currents, sets loose a small balloon and watches its progress as it travels with the air. He also arranges weather vanes, anemometers, etc., which depend on the motion of the air for their action, and by their means he is able to get rough estimates of the local direction and speed of the wind. With the advent of aeronautics it has become highly important that we interpret correctly all the peculiarity of air flow, because it is upon the motion of air that mechanical flight depends.

Quite recently aeronautical engineers in the war department have developed a remarkable new method for studying the behavior of air. Not content with the indirect results above mentioned they succeed in actually making the air visible.

A method discovered at Cook aviation field, Dayton, Ohio, utilizes a 200 horsepower wind tunnel. In addition to its ability to render air visible, it is further novel in that it provides a direct speed of air flow greater than any yet used for such purposes, namely, 500 miles per hour, and it affords this speed at an efficiency higher than usual heretofore.

CORN BORER UPSETS SACRED CUSTOMS OF NEW YORK INDIANS.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—Once more the advance of the white man has come in conflict with the sacred institutions of the native rulers of our soil. There is indignation on the Cattaraugus reservation of the Seneca Indians, lying about 30 miles southwest of Buffalo, N. Y. The European corn borer, a pest imported from across the Great Waters where gun powder, big guns, battleships and all the devastating influences organized, has come to infest their sacred maize. Corn is among the most revered products among Indians and is connected with a number of their annual ceremonies including the green-corn dance, and the annual Seneca "feast of corn and corn among the various families and reservations." One of the Indian houses is in quarantine and the other is not.

The advent of the European corn borer brought a quarantine by the federal Horticultural Board of the United States Department of Agriculture, which restricted the transportation of corn from one locality to another. The pest affected the tassel of the corn, which the Indian like to use among feed from the original Six Nations, and that to a certain extent they are independent of either state or federal control.

O'CALLAGHAN'S DEPORTATION UP TO THE PRESIDENT

State and Labor Departments at Odds Over the Authority to Deport Put it Up to President Wilson For Final Decision

(By Associated Press)

Washington Jan. 11—Decision as to the deportation of Lord Mayor O'Callaghan of Cork, who arrived at New-Port News last week, as a stowaway, and without a passport, was today referred to President Wilson for a final decision. His advice was sought today at the Cabinet meeting by Acting Secretary of State Davis, who insisted that the Lord Mayor be deported, while Sec. Wilson of the Labor Department refuses to acknowledge the jurisdiction of the State Department until the matter has been formally presented to them. The Labor Department has paroled the Lord Mayor pending a decision and the President will settle whether it is a question for the State Department or the Labor Department.

ROCKINGHAM FARMERS TO ORGANIZE

Rockingham County has been as progressive as any county in New Hampshire and one of the most progressive in New England. It has placed cooperative buying on a firm basis and all those who have taken advantage of its facilities by getting goods at cost have made money. It has fostered bank credit for the farmers and this also has been successful. It has also successfully dipped into cooperative marketing and the coming season will be able to extend its facilities on account of the opportunities offered by the Portsmouth Cold Storage Plant at Portsmouth. Part of the financing of this project has been underwritten in order that the farmers of the county can avail themselves through the proposed marketing plan.

All this work costs money and the farmers now know that Mr. Robie, our County Agent, is not a white collar job, and can and does get results. Mr. Huse is not only of the same type but as manager of the exchange is getting results. This has all been accomplished on a meager two dollar membership which has made it necessary to borrow large sums of money from the banks and private individuals in order to run the farmers' business. The Farm Bureau should be independent and its officers realize that the farmers would prefer to see it independent financially and otherwise therefore it is necessary that the dues be raised to the basis that they are in the West in order that we may obtain the advantages that go with sufficient money to properly carry on business.

It is necessary for the individual farmer to ask and decide for himself the following questions and then hear Mr. Cooper tell of the farmers struggles and victories in the West during the past few years. He is a successful western dairy farmer who has braved all the farmer's battles in the west for several years and is worth listening to as he may help you individually answer some of the questions which each one must sooner or later ask and answer for himself.

Is your business worth saving?

Is your business worth expending a third of an egg per day to protect?

Are you making lots of money?

Are you getting a fair share of the consumer's dollar?

Is your family perfectly satisfied, happy and contented?

Are your home conditions such you can keep your boys and girls on the farm?

Are you ready to help make them better?

Your voice is needed in this great crisis.

We have a great responsibility in doing our share to help settle the great national unrest.

We must get our business on a working basis with our fellowman.

The farmers can get anything they go after provided it is just and fair, and we go after it united.

Would you rather contribute six or more eggs, a gallon of milk, a few potatoes or apples, daily, and every few days a chicken, a few pounds of butter or other farm product, so that the people who must sit down three times a day to eat the product of our farm and what it will make you and the members of your family work for the same wages as a Chinese Coolie, or some native of South America, and at many times for even less. This is what we are doing as long as we are unorganized.

Let us be honest with ourselves. Had we not better contribute the price of a third of an egg daily, or even one egg, to put our business on the same level as the laboring man, or even the city newsboys, and thereby get some protection as mediate users or laboring men.

Our manufacturers and laboring men will not compete with Chinese Coolies. Why should we farmers?

Why should we expect doctors, lawyers, merchants, or laboring men to see we are protected by honest tariff laws or help solve taxation problems? These are ours and if we don't take care of them, no one else will.

Writing to your Congressman is like throwing a pail of water in the ocean. It does not do any harm neither does it help.

When the manufacturer or business man wants new trade he hires the best trained men possible, laboring unions do the same. They get the highest priced men to plead their cause whether in Washington or elsewhere. They contribute a part of their daily wage and by so doing get results.

Are you going to continue to sit on your haunches and howl, or are you going to be a real man, join hands and line up with the farmers of this nation, and demand a square deal?

We are facing a crisis. We cannot let things go on as they are. Shall we all be quitters and expect some fairy to wave a magic wand so we can get a just wage for our labor, and feed the world and make business prosperous.

Real farmers are the only people who can or will honestly represent agriculture. The Farm Bureau, the New Hampshire and National Farm Bureaus are made up of men and women who are every day facing the same problem.

We must organize. Every county in the state needs a Farm Bureau.

Five sincere farmers formerly told President Wilson in his office that the farmers were not to blame for the high cost of living. They took the stand that no other business had the courage to back. They told the country that they were ready to cut profits to the bone or go to Canada in any direction to solve the problems provided the whole brotherhood of farmers stood with them.

If all coming Mr. Farmer are you going to help? There is only one way to help, join the Farm Bureau, State and National Federation, when called on talk it over with your family and be ready to sign up when the solicitor's call. Please pass this letter along to your neighbor whose name might not have been on our mailing list.

Yours with results,

Executive Committee of Rockingham County Farm Bureau.

L. N. Sawyer, County President.
C. G. Cooper, Organizer.

LIBERAL GIFT FALLS AT DOOR OF DARTMOUTH

New York.—Sanford H. Steele, lawyer, who died Dec. 15, at Pinehurst, N. C., bequeathed $250,000 to Dartmouth college for a memorial building to his brother, Benjamin Hannah Steele.

Sanford H. Steele, who died at Pinehurst, N. C., in December last, was a native of Illinois. LL. D. He was a graduate of Dartmouth, class of 1870, and was honored with an LL.D. degree. He was an eminent barrister, and practiced law in New York City for many years. He was an organizer of the General Chemical company, one of its officers, and counsel for that company for many years. He specialized in corporation law. He was reputed to be a very wealthy man and devoted to his Alma Mater. He was trustee of Dartmouth college for three years, and held that office at the time of his death.

His brother, Benjamin Hannah Steele, was a very talented Vermont lawyer. He held a judgeship in the highest court of the Green Mountain state at a very youthful age. In fact, he was probably the youngest judge Vermont ever had. He possessed high promise, when claimed by death.

It is understood that a grandson of Sanford Steele is a student at Dartmouth at present.

Sanford Steele was a man who retained many pleasing personal attributes. His approachability was a distinguishing feature. His devotion to Dartmouth college was an obsession with him, and to some of those who were closely connected with him in friendship, his munificent gift comes as no surprise.

NEIGHBORS CHOP TREES TO BUILD BARN FOR BURNED OUT MAN

Derry, Raymond Norris whose barn was burned last month ago, is going to have a new one, thanks to his friends and neighbors.

Norris was hard hit by the fire. In addition to the barn, he lost a number of buildings at the Broadview Park farm. It was a severe blow, and he had talked of removing from town.

His neighbors are too fond of him to permit that. So when he talked of high prices of lumber and the expense of securing it, a half hundred of the town folk went into the woods and chopped down enough trees. Large and small, to furnish timber for a big new barn to surpass the old.

Norris, delighted, has risen up to move. He is going to have the new timber sawed into frame and says he can count the expense of hiring workmen to build the structure, now that his good friends have helped him out.

POURS STEADY STREAM OF NOISELESS DEATH

The story of how Uncle Sam (left) with a sling and stone at rear (left) to the latest type of quick-firing machine gun which shoots 2,000 bullets a minute, which is operated on the general principle of a sling, says Hereward Carrington, in Scientific American. There is no noise, no smoke, no flash just a steady stream of noiseless death; and with a squad of fourteen men it would be possible to wipe out an army corps. The newest device is the invention of Major Edward C. Moore of the New Jersey National guard and an attorney with offices in New York city. He claims to have solved successfully the problem of the use of centrifugal force, instead of explosives—that is, the rapid outward sweeping force which a body is receiving rapidly. The gun's chief features at the rate of 10,000 revolutions a minute—is rapidity in fact, that it does not appear to revolve at all. The wheel is driven by an electric motor. The bullets are fed into the machine gun and thrown outward towards the target with terrific force, as the wheel revolves. A target is nearly ripped to pieces a few seconds after strike. The real effect of several thousand guns of this character in war can well be imagined? Recognition placed upon the inventor by the government stands today.

TO SELECT SITE FOR NEW JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOL

Board of Instruction Adopt Report and Appoint Committee---Want School Nurse Appointed by School Board---Recommendations of Superintendent

The monthly meeting of the board of instruction was held on Tuesday evening with Mayor Hartford presiding and every member of the board present, for the first time including the two new members, Mrs. Pearl Gray and Mr. Charles P. Carroll.

The principal business was the action of the board in taking from the table the report of the committee on the junior high school building—already published, and after some consideration Mrs. Wood and Mr. Thayer were added to the original committee to determine on a site for the proposed new building and to report at the next meeting. The original committee recommended the erection of a junior high school to take the place of the Whipple school now being used, and which is altogether too small to take care of the scholars at one time.

The resignation of Mr. Davis as teacher of drawing and manual training was accepted.

The question of the school nurse was taken up and after discussion the Board voted that it was the opinion of the Board that the school nurse should be appointed by the Board of Instruction and that the appropriation for her salary be included in the school budget. A special committee consisting of Messrs Mitchell, Newick and Gooding were appointed to take the matter up with the Board of Health.

The special committee on increase in salary for the teachers made the following report which was accepted. To the Board of Instruction.

Believing that the cost of living is on the decline, your Committee recommend that no general increase in teachers' salaries be made at the present time. Decreasing prices will increase the value of salaries now paid. For the good of the schools, however, and in order that valuable teachers may not be lost, it is suggested that the various committees of the Board of Instruction be authorized to recommend the Board such increases in individual salaries coming under their jurisdiction as their opinion may be wise and needful.

Respectfully submitted
ALFRED GOODING,
MARY I. WOOD,
I. A. NEWICK,
Committees on Teachers' Salaries.

Superintendent Slayton was authorized to attend the national convention of Superintendents at Atlantic City in February.

The recommendation of the Superintendent in reference to a community room in the Farragut school was referred to the Committee on Schoolhouses.

Supt. Slayton submitted his annual report which was accepted and adopted as the report of the Board of Instruction. The report was read in part and several of the recommendations were discussed by the Board.

The following are a few of the abstracts from this report:

Health and Physical Training

HEALTH—Unfortunately we do not get much farther in our consideration of school economies than how to save or use to better advantage the money placed at our disposal. Neglect of the physical conservation of school children, like a bonded debt, is ultimately a cause of great expense to the commonwealth. I have already discussed the advisability of checking excessive expense due to pupils repeating their work, suggesting that many of these failures were due to health.

We have made a beginning in health conservation through the work of a school nurse, whose report included herewith shows that many defects have been discovered and remedied.

Mrs. DuTilly's work has been extremely efficient and her resignation, due to accepting a position in her home city, Dover, is regretted by all school workers.

There are several disadvantages in connection with the present plan which should be removed. Heretofore the school nurse has been engaged by the Board of Health and paid by them as public health nurse. Her desk and school record cards have all been in the Board of Health's office. Inasmuch as the whole time of the public health nurse is devoted to school work, it seems only reasonable that she should be appointed by the Board of Instruction and paid from their funds as are all other school workers from superintendent to janitor. If it were known that her head-quarters were in the superintendent's office, the many telephone calls to her present office which go unanswered would be taken by the superintendent's clerk. If this plan were followed the nurse would still work in complete accord with the Board of Health in reporting communicable disease.

This far one school nurse has had to inspect, record and follow up 3000 school children, a task that is absolutely impossible. Moreover a complete medical examination, as implied by the law, is impossible because the school nurse is not supposed to diagnose disease of the heart, lungs, throat or nervous system.

This important work of inspection and follow up work should be taken care of in this way:

1—Records of height, weight and history of diseases should be made under the direction of the principals by the teachers, thus distributing a large time-taking part of the inspection among a large number of people. The 3000 record cards should be on file in the School Department.

2—The inspection as to nutrition, vision, hearing, anaemia, heart, lungs, skin and throat should be done by a competent school physician, appointed by the Board of Instruction and working under their direction.

3—The inspection of teeth should be in co-operation with all the dentists in the city.

4—The school nurse should be entirely free from clerical responsibility and devote all her time to home visitation and the securing of treatment of defects.

The present plan throws all of this work upon one person; the plan proposed distributes it among a hundred persons, teachers, physicians, dentists and school nurse. I have seen this plan worked with entire success in two other places where I have served as superintendent. It is practicable for Portsmouth and the expense should not exceed $2500. I recommend that the Board ask the city council for this amount in the new budget and also ask the transfer of school health inspection work to their jurisdiction.

Non-Promotion—An Avoidable Waste

Sufficient attention has not been given to the two-fold loss occasioned by the non-promotion of school children. A year lost because of repeating a grade means that the school enrolment of over-age children is unduly increased and that the pupil's progress is retarded; financially it means 12 1-2 per cent added to the cost of that child's elementary education.

The June, 1920 reports show that 1654 pupils were promoted and 171 were held back. The per capita cost for each of these is 737.53 or a total of $6717.87. Of those promoted 163 were given "condition" or "on trial" indicating rather fairly that next Year's failure list will be practically as large as this year's list.

Some of the causes of failure are illness, quarantine, moving from place to place, general home conditions, large classes, language difficulties and mental ability of the pupils. Often the causes are beyond the parents control, least of all in the child at fault. In the interests of child conservation, if not to prevent the excessive financial waste shown above an opportunity should be given these children to make up their work.

I wish to recommend for the summer of 1921 the opening of enough school rooms for a period of a month or six weeks to enable these children to study under competent teachers for three hours a day. Eight teachers could handle this work so that children would have approximately individual instruction, the very thing they need. The only expense would be that of teachers which should not exceed eight hundred dollars. If the number of failures could be reduced fifty per cent the venture would be worth while; there is little reason to doubt that nearly all of these children could be promoted.

MAYOR OPENS THE FIREMEN'S BOWLING LEAGUE

The firemen opened their bowling alleys in the Central Fire Station on Tuesday evening, when Mayor Hartford rolled the first ball down the number one alley, and delivered a short talk.

The alleys were purchased by the firemen themselves and all of the expenses of the installation borne by the men. They are two of the best that could be purchased and the entire equipment is up-to the minute.

There were a large number of the firemen present for the opening and Chief Woods after a brief talk introduced Mayor Hartford who spoke on the fine building the firemen now had and of the benefits to the department of having a place where the firemen could gather and enjoy themselves when off duty. He rolled the first ball and just missed a strike.

The Firemen's league was then opened with the first game between the Sagamore Engine company and the Col. Sise company. The No. one team defeated the former champions by 24 pins. The scoring was not high as new alleys and new pins made a man earn all he got.

Moran was high man with 263. The score:

ORCHESTRA MAKES BIG HIT WITH DANCERS

Fernando's orchestra created a distinct hit with the dancers at Freeman's hall on Tuesday evening. It was under the auspices of Manager Jow and there was a great crowd out. Their concert program was one of the best that has been played by any orchestra in this city for a long time and their dance music was very fine. They have a number of excellent combinations for every man is a real musician. While they had all of the modern stunts, they never at any time forgot that they were first musicians.

MEDICAL RADIO CALL IS "K D K F"

New York.—Medical advice by radio designed to save life in event of sickness or accident at sea by applying proper treatment until personal service of a physician or surgeon can be obtained, is now possible.

A new emergency radio call the letters "KDKF" has been established, planned to take its place with the International S. O. S. call of vessels in distress.

This call is intended to take precedence in the ever increasing radio service over all other business except the distress signal—for it means that individual life is in danger and assistance is being asked for.

A recent arrangement between the Seamans' Church Institute of New York and the Navy Department established here a school of medical instruction for officers and seamen. Mariners trained in this school if called upon to treat a serious illness or accident case at sea can communicate by radio to the physician at the Seamans' Institute and receive from him instructions to be followed until the ship reached a harbor or obtains assistance from another vessel.

The medical officer in New York is "on watch" from 2 to 10 p. m. for this service.
